Gov. Rockefeller ready to resign, report says

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — Gov. Nelson Rockefeller will announce his resignation during the week of Dec. 16th and will officially step down Jan. 1, a source close to the administration said Friday.

The source told UPI Rockefeller has decided to devote fulltime efforts to a panel called the National Commission on Critical Choices, which he recently formed. Rockefeller reportedly believes that the commission would be an ideal jumping off point in any quest for the Republican presidential nomination in 1976.

In addition, formation of Rockefeller Volunteers, a national citizens' group favoring Rockefeller's nomination, was announced Friday. Chairman Richard D. Connington said the volunteers organization would set up units in all 50 states, Puerto Rico and the District of Columbia.

Rockefeller's action will clear the way for Lt. Gov. Malcolm Wilson, who has served as Rockefeller's second-in-command for 15 years, to take over the chief executive post and prepare to run as the Republican gubernatorial candidate in next year's election.

Official sources within the administration would not comment further, saying that the governor had previously announced he was "keeping his options open" concerning his future plans.

Rockefeller, 65, is currently serving his fourth term as governor.

NELSON ROCKEFELLER

Political observers noted that a defeat in the forthcoming gubernatorial campaign would be a disaster for Rockefeller and would probably spell the end of any presidential hopes he might have.

(In Atlanta, where he was attending the Southern Republican Conference, Rockefeller refused to say what he planned to do.

("When I have an announcement to make, I'll make it," he said.)

Food strikes spreading

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A strike-lockout of the food industry escalated in California Friday and spread to Las Vegas, Nev.

Drivers refused to cross picket lines at the Central Wholesale Produce Market in Los Angeles in support of the 22,000 workers in nine Southern California counties involved in a labor dispute with the Food Employers Council.

The market is the primary source of fresh fruits and vegetables sold in supermarkets in metropolitan Los Angeles.

In San Francisco, representatives of the butchers union and supermarkets were scheduled to meet Saturday in an effort to end a strike-lockout that has closed 230 markets in Northern California and idled some 13,500 employes.

Negotiations in tthe strike-lockout in Southern California were scheduled to resume Monday.

Four Safeway stores in Las Vegas were picketed by the Teamsters Union at the direction of the Western Teamsters Council in Los Angeles. Deliveries were slowed as a result.

Bob Voigt, spokesman for the Food Employers Council Los Angeles, said no fresh produce deliveries were made Friday and there was "very little" fresh produce for sale at retail stores.

Stores were setting up direct deliveries to avoid the wholesale market tieup.

Food industry warehousemen, delivery truck drivers, butchers and other employes are involved in the strike while bakers and some retail clerks are observing picket lines.

Judge orders tense crowd out

Court cleared as 3 face youth-burning charge

By TONY AULT
P-B Staff Writer

CHINO — Municipal Court Judge David Merriam ordered a tense crowded court room cleared of spectators and newsmen Friday on a defense motion as the preliminary hearing for three Chino men accused of burning a 14-year-old youth to death Oct. 6 opened in Chino Municipal Court.

Before the first witness was called by Deputy District Atty. Charles Wolfe, defense attorneys for the three defendants—Jesse Alexander Ruiz, 23, of 13122 Roswell Ave., Chino; Steve Edmund Lopez, 20, of 1448 Jacaranda St., Chino; and Rudy Arellano, 22, of 1337 Mildred St., Chino—asked Judge Merrian to invoke the rule excluding the public under Penal Code Section 868.

According to the code section, everyone except the court personnel, defense attorneys, prosecuting attorneys, witnesses as they are called, and the bailiffs must be excluded from the courtroom if requested by a defendant in a preliminary hearing. Judge Merriam said he had no choice but to invoke the rule.

Reason not given

Defense attorneys John Moore, John Polakovic, and William Batchelor joined in making the public exclusion motion. They would not comment on their reasons.

The three defendants are accused of starting a fire in a Chino garage on Oct. 26 that resulted in the death of Rodney Almaguer, 14, of 13263 Fourth Street, Chino.

Almaguer died two weeks after the fire while undergoing treatment for second and third degree burns over 50 per cent of his body. Chino police accused the three defendants of chasing the boy into a restroom of the garage, pouring gasoline under the door and setting it afire.

The three defendants were originally arrested by police on suspicion of mayhem and assult with intent to do great bodily harm.

A day before the youth died Wolfe withdrew the case during a preliminary hearing and charges were dismissed against the defendants. The following day, the defendants were rearrested after the youth died. This time they were booked in the county jail on suspicion of murder.

Friends present

Since the youth's death, young Almaguer's parents, relatives and many of his school friends have been present in court during hearings on motions.

They crowded into the courtroom Friday, filling nearly all the seats. Tension was evident in the courtroom until the court invoked the public exclusion rule. The gallery, including several newsmen, was escorted outside the courtroom and the door was locked.

While the preliminary hearing continued in the courtroom, benches along the hallways were lined with spectators.

The defense attorneys said the preliminary hearing would probably continue through next Tuesday.

House committee approves new bill with wide powers

WASHINGTON(UPI) —The House Commerce Committee approved Friday the National Energy Emergency Act to give President Nixon broad powers to cope with energy problems. The vote was 24 to 13.

The bill would authorize the President to shift priorities and supplies of fuels to get them to the neediest users, and to order conservation measures that would have the demand to the available supply.

Nixon has expressed hope the bill would be enacted by the middle of the month. The bill softened an original reference to rationing, leaving it optional with the President. The Senate approved a bill directing the President to include rationing plans among contingencies for dealing with the fuels emergency.

Rep. Harley O. Staggers, Chairman of the House Commerce Committee, expressed hope the House can take up this bill next week.

The House bill would authorize Nixon to impose national highway speed limits, order business to cut down their consumption of energy, limit some advertising and transportation, and direct power plants to switch to less scarce fuels such as coal.

The President would be directed to make sure fuels are available for vital public services, such as education.

The committee changed the bill late Thursday night to freeze for one extra year the auto exhaust clenaup standards due for the 1975 model cars.

That would mean the 1975 standards would not yield to stricter standards in the 1976 model year. The 1975 standards are likely to be met through use of the catalytic converter, which cleans up exhaust and gives some better gas mileage as well, with low lead gasoline.

End 8-day strike, teachers ordered

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A Superior Court judge Friday ordered striking Compton school teachers to end their eight-day walkout.

Judge David A. Thomas issued a temporary restraining order prohibiting teachers from striking any of the Compton Unified School District's 41 campuses.

Thomas was acting on a suit filed by a group known as the Citizens Legal Defense Alliance (CLDA) which charged that the strikers showed "wilful disregard for the state legislative and judicial process."

Thomas denied a bid by the strikers' Compton Education Organization, to stop the CLDA from interfering with "sensitive negotiations" between striking teachers and school administrators.

The teachers walked off their jobs Nov. 30, demanding action on requests for higher wages and better protection from on-campus violence.

Negotiations between teachers and administrators resumed Friday but neither side would comment on the prospects of a settlement.

NOT-SO-PERFECT CRIME

Shotgun wielding guard and other officials stand beside Brinks armored truck outside Los Angeles City Hall Friday after four masked men successfully held up two Brinks guards in the City Hall elevator and made off with a sack containing $11 million worth of cancelled treasurer's warrants. They are worthless however. Police are looking for the men and the car in which they escaped.

Expects to be exonerated

Nixon tells Ford he won't resign

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon told Vice President Gerald R. Ford Friday that he will not resign and that he will be "completely exonerated" of any wrongdoing.

Nixon extended the assurances to Ford at a private, 45-minute meeting in the Oval Office on Ford's first full day as Vice President.

"I can assure you the President has no intention whatsoever of resigning," Ford said at his first vice presidential news conference.

"I have heard it before and he reiterated it this morning," Ford added. "I personally don't think he should resign."

Ford said Nixon plans to make a full disclosure of his finances today —although he will not release his income tax returns —and then follow with statements on the ITT case and the milk fund contributions before the end of the year.

"He did assure me that he would be completely exonerated," Ford said. "There will be no fair charges of involvement."

To restore confidence in the presidency, Ford said Nixon should continue to travel around the country, hold press conferences, and continue meetings with small groups of congressmen.

"But the real thing that will swing the pendelum back to faith in the President is accomplishments," Ford said.

He added that if Nixon can negotiate a lasting peace in the Middle East, "there will be a groundswell of support."

Asked whether the House should end its fledgling inquiry into impeachment, Ford said "it is under way. I don't think anything can stop it."

In for bugging, out for holiday

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Three of the original seven Watergate conspirators, finally sentenced for their bugging crimes just a month ago, are already eligible for parole and may be home for Christmas, their lawyer said Friday.

Attorney Daniel E. Schultz told UPI the three men appeared before a federal parole hearing examiner last week at Eglin, Fla., and are awaiting word from Washington if their bids for freedom will be approved.

"If they (parole officials) handle the recommendations in the normal manner and if they are favorable, we should get a decision before Christmas," Schultz said.

Banks raise rates to 10%

NEW YORK (UPI) — Several large commercial banks raised the interest rate on prime business loans to big customers to 10 per cent Friday—double what it was a year ago.

First National City Bank of New York was the first to do so, effective Monday, followed by Mellon Bank of Pittsburgh, Marine Midland Bank, Bankers Trust Co. and Franklin National, also of New York, and Continental Illinois, Chicago.

Girard Bank of Philadelphia said such an increase was "justifiable" but did not follow suit at once. Three other banks, Bank of America of San Francisco, Cleveland Trust Co. and First Pennsylvania Banking & Trust Co. said they were trying to avoid raising the prime rate.

Truckers to get help, but work halt looms

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Government officials promised segments of the trucking industry help in easing fuel problems Friday, but truckers split on whether to cancel a planned two-day nationwide work stoppage next week.

The Transportation Department said one four-man delegation of truck drivers informally representing midwest independents had agreed, on the basis of the promised help, to call on drivers to get their trucks rolling again and "keep 'em rolling."

But Editor Mike Parkhurst of the influential trade publication Overdrive Magazine said after a 2½-hour meeting with Transportation Secretary Claude S. Brinegar that he was "totally dissatisfied."

He said Overdrive Magazine would not decide until Monday afternoon whether to withdraw its call for truck owner-operators and all other segments of the industry to shutdown operations nationwide Dec. 13 and 14.

Across town, Teamster Union President Frank Fitzsimmons urged other government officials to give truckers "all the fuel that they need to keep running, even if it means taking every pleasure car off the road." The officials offered no promises.

Factions widened in the industry as economic pressures worsened in the face of mounting diesel fuel shortages, rapidly rising fuel prices and rising costs associated with lowered speed limits.

The four-man truckers' delegation from the midwest, led by J.W. "River Rat" Edwards, issued a call for truckers to end their highway blockades and slowdowns after reaching agreement with government officials on two points — interstate freight rate increases and fuel pricing regulations.

Pomona Christmas parade set tonight

POMONA — Bands, costumed riders, specialty units and floats—one carrying Santa Claus—will pass along Holt Avenue tonight at 6 in Pomona's 21st annual Christmas parade.

Before the parade begins, the Pomona Concert Band, conducted by Jim Lythans, will play a concert of Christmas music at Holt and Garey avenues.

"The Magic of Christmas" is the parade theme.

A star celebrity added to the list of participants Friday was Barry Williams, the 18-year-old actor who plays Greg on television's The Brady Bunch.

Williams and his date will ride in a car directly behind actress Ann B. Davis, the actress who plays Alice on the same show. She is a division marshal.

Miss Pam Lambine, who is Miss Pomona Valley, also is a division marshal. This 20-year-old beauty contest winner attends Mt. San Antonio College in Walnut and works at the May Company. She loves to ski.

This year's Christmas parade, according to parade chairman Sam Russo, will be an on-time, snappy affair. The police department will close Holt Avenue to traffic to allow it to pass by uninterrupted.

Some 116 units in four divisions are to pass in review. They will be led by Los Angeles' pitcher Bill Singer of Diamond Bar who is grand marshal.

Pomona Jaycees annually coordinate the parade which is funded by the City Council. As in years past, the Jaycees' Santa Claus float will be near the end of the lineup.

It will be followed by a U. S. Postal truck. Attendants will be present to gather letters children wish to have mailed to Santa.

Entries in bands, floats, equestrian and specialty unit categories will be judged before the parade begins and awarded trophies and ribbons.

Gas stations (81%) to close Sunday

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Nearly 81 per cent of the owners of some 200 service stations along major highways in Southern California said they would close from tonight to Monday morning.

A Southern California Automobile Club survey indicated a number of stations along Interstate 15, connecting Southern California and Las Vegas, will be open but motorists driving in other areas would encounter difficulties.

Interstate 5 from Orange County south to San Diego will be almost totally "closed" because of service station shutdowns.

Most stations surveyed in San Diego and Imperial counties will close at 9 p.m. Saturday.

The Santa Barbara and San Luis Obispo areas will also be largely without open gas stations, although a few stations will be open along U.S. 101 in Carpenteria, Santa Barbara, San Luis Obispo, Atascadero and Paso Robles.

A few stations will be open between Cabazon and Whitewater along Interstate 10.

Two stations in the Palm Springs area reported they would remain open Sunday.

Plan to halt drinkers told

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — City police officers in Los Angeles County will conduct a drive to urge drinking drivers to stay off the roadways during the holidays, it was announced Friday.

The Los Angeles ncounty Peace Officers Association said the program will involve media advertisments to urge motorists and pedestrians to stay off the roads when they've been drinking.

Under a similar safety program, holiday traffic fatalities in the county were reduced from 41 in 1972 to 17 last year, the association said.

Secret Service still with Agnew

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Spiro T. Agnew still is receiving Secret Service protection two months after his resignation as vice president, the White House said Friday.

The protection for Agnew was ordered by President Nixon after Agnew resigned Oct. 10 and White House spokesmen said the President had not ordered it terminated.

The President "requested that this be done for an indefinite period, not a prolonged period," Deputy Press Secretary Gerald L. Warren said Friday, the day after Gerald R. Ford was sworn in as Agnew's successor.

Agnew has been working on various files and personal matters in an office across Pennsylvania Avenue from the White House. Warren said it was up to the Secret Service to announce the termination of Agnew's protection because "we are dealing with a matter of security."

Asked why Agnew got protection, Warren said, "The President felt it was proper and still does."

Dancer ends 'coffin' life with snakes

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Exotic dancer Frenchie Renee Friday stepped out of her underground "coffin" where she spent a month with four rattlesnakes and a boa constrictor.

The strawberry blonde nightclub dancer emerged after spending 30 days in a 6 ½-x-3 ½-x-6-foot box and posed with the large boa.

A spokesman for Miss Renee said she broke the world record for remaining underground with snakes Sunday, her 25th day.

She was buried with the snakes Nov. 7 across the street from the San Francisco Zoo. The box had a chute and a partial glass ceiling, through which she received food and mail.

Alaska State Police said at least 150 calls were received from persons whose homes suffered glass or plaster damage or who were shaken awake by the blast.

Extensive minor damage was reported to homes and businesses in the Eagle River area, about five miles from the blast site, and one business establishment was reported looted.

The blast was felt in Anchorage, the state's largest city, far north as Palmer, 30 miles from Eagle River.

The blast area adjoining the Ft. Richardson Army post was sealed off by state troopers and federal agents investigating the explosion. The FBI was involved because the Alaska Railroad is federally owned.

County fire chief warns

Fuel worry leading to some hazardous actions

LOS ANGELES — County Fire Chief Richard H. Houts today said he is very concerned with reports filtering into the fire department regarding certain "citizen actions" brought on by the energy crisis.

In the best possible of intentions, he said, some citizens have begun using some very hazardous methods of supplanting approved methods of heating homes, in cooking and in fuel storage.

Houts said he has been informed of six hazardous actions by homeowners. He listed them as:

— The illegal use of unvented heaters in homes where people sleep.

— Barbecues being brought inside both to cook on and as sources of heat.

— Gasoline camping stoves being used inside homes for cooking and heating, and the use of camping lanterns inside homes.

— The complete sealing of doors, windows and all openings, which does not allow for safe and adequate ventilation.

— The burning of trash in fireplaces, for heat, in addition to the unsafe storage of combustible fuels such as wood and paper.

— Illegal storage of gasoline and other flammable fuels in homes and garages.

Under the fire code, Houts said, it is illegal to store more than 10 gallons of gasoline on a residential premise. Also, the stored fuel must be within approved containers and tightly sealed.

This type of fuel storage is not intended for motor vehicle use.

Houts said he appreciated citizens being energy conscious, but he does not wish to see the reasonable safety of citizens suffer, even though actions are well intended.

He urged citizens to check with public utilities, fire departments and other public agencies for advice where needed.

Hospital, colleges helping train slow-learning students for jobs

POMONA — A cooperative venture aimed at training the slow learner has entered its first full year of operation here.

Eleventh and 12th graders from Pomona Valley Community Hospital, Cal Poly and Mt. San Antonio College. Forty students are enrolled for the year. They spend at least two hours a day at the job site, accompanied by their classroom reacher.

Teacher Lynn Underwood of Pomona High School has 18 young people in his group, which started at Pomona Valley Community Hospital, training at job stations in dietary, laundry and maintenance departments.

After seven weeks at PVCH, the group rotates with the other two. One has been at Mt. San Antonio College under Julius Teglas, a Garey High School teacher, and the other at Cal Poly, under Mrs. Brigid Casey of Ganesha High School.

The program was formed last summer and is set up as a model which officials of the Pomona Unified School District's special education division hope will be adapted to the four other school districts in the Baldy View Regional Occupational Program (ROP) — Bonita, Chaffey, Claremont and Chino. Charles A. Benson, ROP coordinator, said the pilot program is the only one of its kind in the state.

Funds generated by Baldy View are combined with school district funds and federal grants to finance the project.

Counselors, school administrators, and community leaders recently attended a breakfast meeting at PVCH to learn about the program and its progress.

Pomona school district officials who are playing key roles in the programs.

Brophy noted the cooperative effort involved when an employer consents to become one of the training sites. In the case of Pomona Valley Community Hospital, school officials and hospital officials worked together to develop a curriculum and establish the proper job stations to fit the abilities and interests of the students. A hospital employe works closely with the trainee at all times. An orientation week also helps prepare the student before he starts at each training site.

Placement of students in jobs afte their training is another goal of the program.

"In the past, these students have not been included in school work experience programs," Mrs. Gracy explained. "And it has been difficult for them to find employment of any kind.

"This innovative program offers new opportunties for these young people." she said.

Pomona teachers add to school-arson reward fund

POMONA — The Associated Pomona Teachers (APT) have added $200 to the reward being offered for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the arsonists responsible for the $25,000 Madison school fires Nov. 10-11.

This brings to $500 the total amount of reward being offered. The Pomona school board is offering $300.

The board of directors of the APT authorized the $200 addition to the reward at their November board meeting.

"The association is very concerned about the excessive vandalism and violence in our schools, and hopefully the reward fund will generate more community interest in solving some of our problems," said Del Pfeifer, APT executive director.

Fire Chief John M. Fowlkes said investigations have proved that the Madison school fires were double set. Extensive investigations are continuing.

The arsonist set one fire the night of Nov. 10. It did little damage and was extinguished quickly. It would appear he waited at the school through the night and after the security guard posted at the school left early Nov. 11, set a second fire.

This blaze destroyed the school's math and reading resource center and damaged two adjoining classrooms.

Condemnation suit on property under way

POMONA — Trial of a condemnation suit, involving the last piece of property sought by the Pomona Redevelopment Agency for a financial center at Fourth Street and Garey Avenue, is underway in Pomona Superior Court.

The trial, before a jury and Judge Howard D. McClain, is expected to last into early next week.

The property, formerly an art supply shop, is owned by Mary I. Kuntz and contains about 5,000 square feet near the southwest corner. The jury went there this week to view it.

The agency recently acquired two other parcels there. One is a building referred to as the Jackson property, which housed a finance company, real estate office and Christtian Science reading room. The other is the Chung King restaurant, owned by Mrs. Henry Wong.

The agency will pay $55,600 for the Jackson parcel and also will pay relocation expenses of the three occupants. For the restaurant, the city has agreed to trade property it owns at Third and Main Street, which formerly contained a stationers. Relocation expenses also will be paid.

The Kuntz property reportedly has been appraised at $35,000 by appraisers representing the city, and $45,000 by appraisers representing the owner. Mrs. Kuntz, however, seeks more than the latter figure, maintaining neither amount represents the fair market price.

The agency legally is separate from the city, but Pomona City councilmen form the board of directors of the agency. They have contracted with a Santa Ana law firm to handle the suit, since the city has avoided handling such litigation itself for many years.

The attorney representing the agency is Robert Waldron. Thomas G. Baggott, Los Angeles, represents Mrs. Kuntz.

Man who raped woman, 60, sentenced to state prison

POMONA — Charles Wallace Truman, 24, has been sentenced to state prison for the burlary, robbery and rape of a 60-year-old Claremont school teacher.

Truman, 2447 N. Mountain Ave., Pomona, was sentenced by Pomona Superior Court Judge August J. Goebel.

The Pomona man was found guilty by a jury Nov. 5. In addition to the three convictions, the panel ruled he had been armed with a deadly weapon, a knife, during the commission of the crimes.

The incident occurred a year ago. A man armed with a knife climbed through the woman's bathroom window, quietly rummaged through the apartment, looking for valuables, and then attacked her. He fled with her purse, two rings, a watch, credit cards and other items.

The victim screamed as the intruder exited through the same window and police chased his car a short distance before it crashed. The driver fled on foot. The next day officers obtained a warrant for Truman's arrest and he was seized while Christmas shopping at the Pomona Valley Center.

Police appeal for info on L.V. slaying

LA VERNE — Police are appealing to persons who witnessed the slaying early Nov. 11 of Jon Balfour Soupcoff to contact officers who are investigating the case.

Soupcoff, 23, 508 Meadow Lane, Pomona, was stabbed to death in a fight on the center divider of White Avenue, near the La Verne Inn, where he and others had attended a birthday party.

Police have arrested a total of six suspects in the case, but all were released because evidence was insufficient to obtain complaints.

The fight was the result of remarks made during the party, police said.

Cancer research funds released by government

POMONA — The federal government this week released half of the $12 million it is putting up for construction of the first comprehensive center on the West Coast for research and treatment of cancer.

So stated Dr. Thomas Hall, associate director for clinical research, at Thursday's quarterly meeting of the board of directors of the newly formed Northeast Los Angeles County Unit of the American Cancer Society.

The board meeting was held at Kellogg West on the Cal Poly campus with Dr. William Fister of Pasadena, unit president, presiding. The unit was organized last September to serve 38 communities, from East Los Angeles, where the cancer center will be built, to the Pomona Valley.

When completed in 1978, the center will offer specialized treatment for advanced cancer cases that cannot be treated successfully by community facilities, Dr. Hall said. It will be erected at a cost of about $38 million adjacent to the USC-County Hospital complex.

The cost will be divided, with USC providing $6 million and the county $20 million in addition to the federal allocation. The old California College of Medicine on the hospital grounds is being renovated at a cost of $8 million to serve as the center until the new facility is ready.

Board action included the acceptance of a unit charter from the national body, the adoption of a crusade goal of $505,000 for next spring, and the award of a plaque to Linda Robinson of Baldwin Park who turned in the most money in the recent Bikeathon. Her sponsors contributed $450 to the Cancer Society.

The board elected six new directors: Mrs. Daniel Howard and Dr. A. Thomas Petro of Pasadena, Dr. Diane Crocker and Dr. Duane E. Townsend of USC, Dr. Jerry Kerner of West Covina, and Alfredo Cordoba of Baldwin Park.

Dog family's house destroyed by fire

POMONA — Hunker, a German Shepherd with a litter of seven puppies, was homeless Thursday morning after a fire destroyed the family's large dog house.

Firemen said an overheated electric heating lamp used to heat the dog house apparently started the fire. The dog house was located at the rear of 675 Wisconsin St.

The mother and puppies scrambled when the fire started and all were reported in good condition. Their owners, Mr. and Mrs. Monte Shank, have purchased a new dog house for their pets.

NEW FEET FOR CHRISTMAS — Podiatrists Dr. Pedro Pons, left, and Dr. Thomas E. Sgarlato examine the club feet of Roalinda Avila, a 12-year-old Mexican girl who grew up in a chicken coop because she was crippled from birth. The child was brought to California for an operation to help her.

Mayor Bradley's preference:

Power cuts and premium rates rather than 50-hour work week

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Paying premium rates for reduced amounts of power would prove far less damaging than either dramatic rolling blackouts or a 50-hour work week, Mayor Tom Bradley said Thursday night.

In a telephone interview from San Juan, Puerto Rico, Bradley suggested that instead of the widely condemned 50-hour business week, that the city slice power use back to 25 per cent below 1972 levels and charge premium rates —and even higher rates for those exceeding their base alottment.

That, said the mayor, would be "less damaging than arbitrary limitation of work hours."

All 1.1 million residential, industrial and business customers of the Department of Water and Power, Bradley said would be subject to the higher rates, which would increase in proportion to the amount of electricity they used above the base fire.

Throughout the City Hall interview, Bradley never firmly said this "might or might not" be a substitute for the city's other proposal to drastically limit business hours.

Earlier Thursday the city council approved a nine-man civilian committee that said it would work through the weekend sorting out possible crisis solutions to the city's growing energy shortage, and report next week to the council's Water and Power Committee.

Meanwhile, next Thursday the powerhouse ordinances calling for mandatory electrical cuts throughout the city — including a 50-hour work plan —will be presented to the full council.

The Department of Water and Power Thursday said their energy-conservation plan — sharply criticized from all corners—was not haphazardly suggested since the city may begin running short of low sulphur fuel oil by February.

Officials for the DWP blamed the city's growing predicament on federal government's cutbacks in the amount of natural gas that the city could use to fire up its generators.

DWP engineer F. Carl Osborn said the city was forced to buy and burn nearly three times as much fuel oil than in 1970 because, he said, the Federal Power Commission felt burning natural gas was not efficient.

Osborne said the government commission has not softened its position despite repeated official appeals.

Business, industry and labor spokesman spoke sharply against the spectre of a 50-hour work week and how it could slash giant holes in the city's economy and cause widespread unemployment.

— Ralph's Grocery board chairman Eugene Walsh said the plan would create severe food shortages, accompnied by mass layoffs ruinous to the entire food industry.

And representatives of the news media and the dairy and entertainment industries each condemned the DWP limitation plan and argued they cannot work within it because they required continuous power.

Girl to get 'new feet' for Christmas

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A crippled Mexican girl forced to spend her days in a chicken coop because she couldn't walk will get "new feet" for Christmas.

Rosalinda Avila, a 12-year-old orphan, will undergo surgery for club feet next week at the California Podiatry Hospital after a group heard of her plight.

The girl was a wild, biting, scratching animal-like child when she was found a year ago on a small farm in Mexico and taken to an orphanage at La Piedad, about 100 miles east of Guadalajara.

"Her parents had died, and the people she was with on a little ranch apparently put her in the coop with the chickens during the daytime because she could not walk," said Mrs. Donald Eldridge of Cupertino, Calif.

"She was in a pretty sad state when she went to the orphanage. She still has many traits of a much younger child."

But by her 13th birthday next June Rosalinda, crawling since infancy, is expected to be walking for the first time in her life.

The Mexican orphanage, Casita de Nazaret, is run by a Catholic nun who has friends in California, including a Presbyterian family in Cupertino, a private pilot and a San Francisco foot surgeon who arranged for the operation.

A few days before Christmas, Rosalinda will leave the hospital for her temporary home with Mrs. Eldridge and her husband. She will be in a cast for three months.

Mrs. Eldridge said Sister Bravo "accomplished a great deal" with the girl in the year the child has been at the orphanage.

And everything indicates the little Mexican girl can look forward to becoming a normal, erect adult instead of hobbling around on her knees the rest of her life.

Report from America

Gal's lib no joke at 5 a.m.

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Ever tried to arbitrate a beef over women's lib?

Sure, one might say, it's easy.

But in this man's house the disputes have picked up in recent days and the gong for the first round generally is sounded at 5 a.m.

The situation is exacerbated because I get home from work at 11:15 p.m. every night after working a night shift. And my mental processes are not at their best in the pre-dawn hours.

The early morning arguments have started because my oldest daughter, Joan, 13, has started delivering The San Francisco Chronicle. She joined my oldest sons, twins Steve and Vince, 14, in toting the newspaper.

A typical morning might start like this?

"Why don't you give up the route?" Vince asks Joan. "You can't even throw the papers to the door. You're too weak. Girls shouldn't do this."

"You make more mistakes than I do," Joan answers crisply. "The girls do a better job on the routes than the boys."

"Wait a minute," I interject sleepily. "Get going and deliver the papers. Argue later."

There's quiet for a few seconds. Then:

"I need the wire cutters for the bundle," Joan shouts.

"You can't use mine," Steve says.

"I need mine," Vince adds.

"But you can get your bundle apart without them," Joan comes back.

Again I play peacemaker. I trudge down to the garage to find my own cutters and give them to my daughter.

Finally I roll back into the pit. But an hour later noise from the kitchen. They're back.

"It's my turn to choose the cereal for breakfast," Joan says.

"It's mine," Vince replies."

"Let's have bacon and eggs," Steve says.

Back out of the sack I roll and I make the decision.

But it's too late.

Out of bed bounds twins Tony and Ann, 12, and daughter Bernie, 10. Mother then assumes the role of peacemaker.

Tony hopes to join soon the Lurati family newspaper carrier service, also toting the Chronicle. And, although she hasn't said so, Ann too will probably decide she would use a little extra spending money. And the Chronicle will probably be her choice.

Bernie is still too young to think about work.

About the only one in the house to survive the morning pandemonium is the family cat. Tinkerbelle generally sneaks into a corner and snoozes on.

TV is finally coming to remote Utah hamlet

FRUITA, Utah (UPI) — Television is coming to this hamlet in the rugged canyon country of southern Utah. The town's four children are excited; their parents aren't so sure.

Fruita, the headquarters of Capitol Reef National Park, is probably the last community to get television in a state where more than 98 per cent of the people have it.

"We've gotten along all right without it," said Park Superintendent Franklin Wallace. "But it's going to be mighty good for morale, especially the wives'."

Only nine families are permanent residents of the town, all of them involved in running the park. There are just four children, ranging in age from less than a year to 10.

"I have mixed emotions about it," said Mrs. Ivan Hart, mother of three of the youngsters. "I feel our family life won't be the same."

"We'll have strict rules about watching it," said Jimmy Taylor, the chief ranger, who is the father of the town's only other child, a six-year-old boy.

It will be at least spring before the kids can start watching cartoons and their fathers can see their favorite sports on the tube.

It will take that long for the Federal Communications Commission to approve the licenses required to install translators and other equipment so Fruita can pick up the three commercial channels from Salt Lake City.

"Getting the approval takes the most time," said Kent Parsons, an engineer who will install the equipment that is already there. "All we have to do is spend a couple of days putting it all together."

Jean Clark, wife of ranger Grant Clark, said, "it will be great to see the news and the space shots, but it's going to ruin the peace and quiet of the park."

What difference will television make?

"In our reading, I guess," said Taylor. "Everybody here reads a lot and we've built up a good circulating library."

Gaps in tapes was 'trauma' for White House--Haig

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Discovery of gaps in President Nixon's Watergate tapes, according to chief of staff Alexander M. Haig, had a "fairly traumatic" impact on the White House and led to speculation blaming "some sinister force."

"Has anybody ever sugested who that sinister force was?" Chief U.S. District Court Judge John J. Sirica asked as Haig concluded two days on the witness stand Thursday.

"No, your honor," Haig replied.

Haig appeared to soften his sinister force suggestion later while talking to reporters outside the courtroom. He told them he believes the erasure was "totally innocent...an accident. I've always thought it was Miss (Rose Mary) Woods (the President's secretary). I've known some women who think they've talked for four or five minutes and they have talked for an hour."

Sirica recessed the hearings on White House handling of the tapes until "sometime next week" when technical experts will testify on their findings.

At issue are:

— Allegedly none existent tapes of conversations Nixon had with former Attorney General John N. Mitchell June 20, 1972, and with former White House Counsel John W. Dean III April 15, 1973.

—18 minutes obliterated on the tape of a meeting Nixon had with former White House aides H.R. Haldeman and John D. Ehrlichman on that June 20. Nixon's personal secretary, Rose Mary Woods, has testified she may have caused a 4 ½ to 5 minute gap by pushing the record button while making a summary.

The June 20 talks took place on the first full working day at the White House after the break-in at the Democratic national offices in the Watergate complex.

"We had just had two nonrecordings," Haig testified, "which was fairly traumatic from our perspective. It was important that we not have a repeat of that kind of thing which led to perceptions by the American people which I don't think were justified by the facts."

Later, Assistant Special Prosecutor Richard Ben-Veniste asked Haig if he had an explanation for the 18-minute gap.

"There have been discussions on what I referred to as the 'devil' theories. Specifically, on the night we returned from Memphis (Nixon's trip (Nov. 20), I met with the President's counsel," Haig said.

"They were very concerned that evening that the tests they made that day convinced them at that time that the machine used by Miss Woods could not have made the tones they now heard on the tapes, and that therefore, they suggested that some outside source of energy had been applied to the tapes.

"That same evening, a more finite discussion or description was that (a) not only could they not account for the energy source that made the tone, but (b) there were two tones, one lasting 4 ½ to 5 minutes and the other for the balance of the period, and that this was a source of great distress to them, and perhaps there had been one tone applied by Miss Woods in accordance with her description to the President of a 4 ½ to 5 minute gap and then perhaps some sinister force had come in and applied the other energy source and taken care of the information in the gap.

Hoover plan to hit 'New Left' disclosed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The FBI, in compliance with a court order, has made public J. Edgar Hoover's 1968 secreet plan to disrupt and neutralize activities of "New Left" organizations.

The program was outlined by Hoover in a May 10, 1968, memo and terminated on April 28, 1971.

"The purpose of this program is to expose, disrupt and otherwise neutralize the activities of the various New Left organizations, their leadership and adherence," the memo said.

"We must frustrate every effort of these groups and ndividuals to consolidate their forces or recruit new or youthful adherents."

The FBI made the two memos pubdic recently under an Oct. 26 court order obtained by NBC newsman Carl Stern under the Freedom of Information Act. Stern was the first newsman to win such a case against the FBI.

Hoover's program, known as COINTELPROS, was subdivided under such captions as espionage, New Left, disruption of white hate groups, Communist Party, black extremists and Socialist Workers Party. There was no other identification of the groups to be watched.

Hoover's blueprint portrayed the project as one of widespread information gathering about organizations and their "key activists."

"You are cautioned that the nature of this new endeavor is such that under no circumstances should the existence of the program be made known outside the bureau," the memo said.

The memo said it was imperative that activist New Left organizations be monitored continually.

None of the information that may have been gathered under the program was made public.

Italy fears baby boom over crisis

MILAN, Italy (UPI) — One of the country's leading population experts said that austerity measures imposed by the government may result in a disastrous baby boom for overpopulated Italy.

Prof. Adriano Buzzati Traverson, writing in the Milan newspaper Corriere della Sera, said early closing hours for restaurants, movie houses and television and a ban on Sunday driving "may induce couples, legitimate or otherwise, to more frequent and prolonged love games."

"Unless they take proper precautions, the number of babies born after September, 1974, is likely to be higher than in recent years," Buzzati said.

Letters to Santa: lists are long, reflect energy crisis

NEW YORK (UPI) — Letters addressed to "Santa Claus, the North Pole" have begun pouring into the New York Post Office, some with long detailed Christmas gift lists, others showing that even the children of New York are caught up in the energy crisis.

One businesslike youngster listed 20 items in a column with the prices marked next to each. The total came to over $300.

Another child asking for 50 gifts including a toy movie projector and a "remote-control ambassador yacht," offered Santa a choice: "These are the things I want. I know you won't be able to get them all so just get the ones you think are the best."

"My father says we have to spend our money wisely because the prices are going up so we shouldn't spend money on things we would want for pleasure," wrote one New York girl hoping for a visit from Santa Claus.

Another youthful writer, who said she was writing on behalf of her five brothers and sisters, said she didn't think they would even have a Christmas tree this year, "because of the electricity."

The letters were among almost 2,000 mailed to Santa in care of "the North Pole" on display recently at the General Post Office in New York City.

Each year the Post Office receives thousands of letters from hopeful kids, often from needy families.

A special post office fund provides gifts for only a few hundred children, New York City Postmaster John Strachan said. "So we try to encourage the public to peruse these touching, humorous and hopeful appeals and take away as many as their kind hearts and generous pocketbooks will permit," he said.

Move to halt violence

Prison gang members to be segregated

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Prison gang members will be segregated and their jailhouse freedoms sharply restricted when lockups at the state's four toughest institutions are eased next week, California Corrections Director Raymond Procunier said Thursday.

Such gangs as the Mexican Mafia, Muestra Familia, Aryan Brotherhood and Black Guerrilla Family will come under special scrutiny in an effort to halt mushrooming violence within the state system, Procunier declared.

Admitting in an interview that he was taking the hardest line ever in his six years as state prison boss, he said:

"In general terms what it boils down to is we've got to get these places safe enough that the staff is operating in a climate where they are not fearful and the inmates are operating where they are not fearful."

Procunier, a 20-year corrections department veteran who worked his way up from a guard, ordered a strict lockup at San Quentin, Folsom, Soledad and Tracy last week because of a "reign of terror."

More and more hard core felons than ever before are in or being sentenced to state prisons daily "and the atmosphere is so charged the good guys are afraid to be friends with us," he said.

"Gangs of these guys are running wild and threatening other people. They're hoodlums really. They're using violence to keep other people in line."

Gang attacks and warfare, he said, are responsible for up to 90 per cent of the prison violence.

The lockups, during which all jail freedoms are restricted and searches conducted, will be phased out "in the next few days.

"We're all very sensitive and aware that we don't want to keep any guys locked up unnecessarily but at the same time we don't want to unlock so fast we are going to be too lenient for them," he said.

The prison, he added, will return to "a normal of much more control than it was before.

"It will be much stricter for some. There'll be a group, we don't know how big, which will be restricted considerably more than they are now. They'll have programs limited to what can be safe for that group."

That group, he said, will be composed of identified gang members and other general trouble makers.

There also will be another group, which Procunier called "questionable —those we can't identify that well," which also will be restricted.

"In the simplest terms the good guys will have less restrictions and more opportunities," he said.

The lockups and general crackdown on violence, he said, have created a new prison atmosphere which both inmates and guards feel will wipe out the fear of violence.

"Many, many inmates are very optimistic. They've got faith we're not going to be screwing down people when we don't need to," Procunier said.

2 high school boys carry out suicide pact

MADERA (UPI) — Two high school freshmen apparently carried out a suicide pact just three months after the brother of one died of a self-inflicted gunshot, police said Tuesday.

Police Chief Gordon Skeels said the victims had been arrested Saturday for an investigation into drinking and had "told police investigators at juvenile hall they had made a suicide pact."

Following their release, the bodies of Greg Lyon, 15, and Mark Metzger, 14, both freshmen at Madera High School, were found Monday in a cotton field.

Madera County sheriff's deputies said it appeared one youth had shot the other in the head and then turned a .22 caliber rifle on himself.

Metzger's brother, Robert, 15, fatally wounded himself Sept. 4 after firing at his mother during a quarrel. The mother was not hit but detectives said Robert apparently believed he had killed her.

Fuel shortages will hamper state farmers

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Fuel shortages probably will force California farmers and ranchers to drop plans to increase their operations to meet growing worldwide food demands, according to a top state farm official.

"The situation is critical," said President Allan Grant of the California Farm Bureau Federation Thursday. "The impact of the fuel shortage will be felt not only in food prices paid by consumers but also in industries related to agriculture such as trucking firms, supermarkets, restaurants and others."

Because agriculture is the No. 1 industry of California, he said, farmers "must be guaranteed adequate supplies of necessary resources."

He said farmers "are in a real bind. Many had purchased large diesel tractors in order to handle their increased acreage. Now they are unable to get the diesel fuel. They are unable to obtain an allotment for the necessary quantity of fuel which they now require."

Grant also said questionnaires distributed to bureau members "indicate that obtaining adequate supplies of fuel, particularly diesel fuel, is a critical problem throughout the state."

The majority of the responses to the questionnaires came from the central San Joaquin Valley, which Grant called the "grocery basket of the world."

"Without an adequate supply of fuel to prepare the ground and tend the crops, an abundant food supply for 1974 is questionable," he said.

African 'wetbacks' in Italy: slave trade of modern times

By NEA-London Economist News Service

ROME — (LENS) — The five black strangers who came banging on the door in the middle of the night were not made welcome. Instead, the old Italian couple set off for the local carabinieri, who in turn decided to call for reinforcements. When they all returned to the pensioners shack several hours later they did not find the band of armed thugs they expected but three dead Africans and two others suffering from exposure and hunger.

The five, all of them from Mali, have since turned out to be only the least fortunate of a much larger number of African migrants. Since mid-October, five other Malians have given themselves up to the police in the same north-east region of Italy which borders on Yugoslavia, and another group, escorted by three Italians, was arrested recently by the Yugoslav authorities before crossing into Italy.

The Africans are the victims of what amounts to a modern slave trade. Lured by Europe, they fall easy prey to anyone who offers them transport to the north and the promise of work. But for this they pay dearly in cash and human suffering. First, the organizers demand money for the one-way ticket plus a commission for expenses on the journey and for the provision of sub-standard accommodation at the other end. If the Africans are then trusting enough to let the organization handle the savings they want to send back to Africa, still another cut is taken. At the end, it is only the lucky ones who have anything left of their meager wages for themselves or their families at home.

The start of the trade route for the victims — mostly from Mali, Senegal and the Ivory Coast — is thought to be a clearing point somewhere in Tunisia. From there they get transported by air to Yugoslavia, across the frontier into Italy at Trieste and then on into France. Last year the old route through Palermo and Rome was scrapped when the Italians started investigations and made a few, insignificant, arrests.

Until now Yugoslavia has proved an ideal entry point. Tourist visas are easy to come by, and when the Yugoslav authorities have tumbled to the fact that their visitors from the third world are not the usual sort of tourists, they have been all too eager to speed them on rather than pay their passage home.

The entry into Italy used to be equally easy. But now the frontier guards are wary about accepting what appear to be perfectly valid documents for entry into Italy. It is here that the underground route begins — cramped, airless compartments in transcontinental trucks, night-time flights across unguarded sections of the frontier, hazardous boat-rides along the coast. If discovered, the Africans usually end up in miserable refugee camps. If all goes well, they are then faced with similar dangers on the French frontier.

The Africans' final destination is generally thought to be the large industrial cities of northern Europe. But the Italians are no longer so sure that their country is just a staging post. It is known, for example, that there are some 5,000 Tunisian laborers in Sicily, working for pitiful wages and in sub-human conditions. In the northern cities, Turks and Arabs are now being employed in the heavy and dangerous jobs that Italians are refusing.

So far there is no great concern that black Africans are being used in the same way. But it is a safe bet that they will not be far behind the Turks and Arabs once they know that jobs are available.

Airlines expect to haul 8 million passengers

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Despite a fuel shortage, and more than 1,000 fewer flights, the nation's airlines expect to carry more than 8 million passengers over the Christmas holidays, the Air Transport Association (ATA) said today.

Some of the added passenger load is expected to come from holiday travelers who were forced to scrap plans to travel by car because of the fuel shortage.

United Air Lines, the nation's largest airline, said it would be forced to cancel "a few flights in December" in order to apply the fuel savings to the peak load period E. Carlson said Thursday "we can assure the public that the December cuts won't eliminate United service in any market," Carlson said.

The ATA, however, warned travelers, to plan their travel carefully.

Airlines report especially heavy bookings for the following days: December 14, 21, 22, 23, 26, 30 and Jan. 2.

A spokesman for the ATA also urged travelers not to carry gift wrapped presents aboard planes. "They may have to be unwrapped in the security inspection," he warned.

The ATA also urged travelers not to make multiple reservatiions. "A seat that you do not use could be made available to other travelers," the spokesman said.

2 new rules slated to aid consumers

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Two new rules designed to protect consumers from fast talking door-to-door salesmen and hard selling mail order houses will go into effect next year, the Federal Trade Commission (FTC) announced Friday.

The door-to-door rule says that any salesman doing business outside his store, including by telephone, must give his customers the right to cancel an order within three days after the sale, without penalty.

The rule applies only to sales of $25 or more in consumer goods and services.

"It is premised on the theory that during the three-day cooling off period the consumer may reflect upon the wisdom of his purchase and perhaps consult more knowledgeable members of the family or consumer protection agencies," the FTC said. "If he should then decide that his purchase was unwise he may cancel the sale."

The rule goes into effect June 7, as does the second proviso covering "negative option" sales plans—tactics sometimes used by book and record clubs which notify their customers they will be sent a "selection" unless they notify the company they don't want it.

Under the new rule any firm using such a plan must clearly disclose that fact in any advertising or other promotion material. The sellers must also give their customers at least 10 days in which to notify the firm not to send the merchandise, and the seller must also guarantee postage for merchandise returned to it by customers who did not order it.

Whisky, beer hijacked in Los Angeles

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A trucker delivering $14,000 in whisky was kidnaped Tuesday and his shipment hijacked, while in another part of town another driver eating lunch lost his truckload of beer to a team of bandits.

Within hours of the beer truck heist, sheriff's deputies spotted the hijackers loading some of 1,700 cases onto a pickup truck. Seven men were arrested.

The beer truck driver, Ten Hinton, said he was in a restaurant in the Firestone district when the theft occured.

Police were still searching today for the men who stole 170 cases of whisky while the driver was making routine city deliveries.

Authorities said the driver, Tony Criscione, 54, was ordered by four armed men into a car which followed the truck until they got to Long Beach, where he was released unharmed.

The four bandits were said to be in their 20s.

Deadly game was his last

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — A 20-year-old man played Russian roulette recently and lost.

Authorities said Baltazar Camarillo Gonzalez was killed instantly.

A witness, Serafin Perez Mendoza, told police that Camarillo Gonzalez pulled all but one bullet out of a pistol, spun the chamber, put the pistol to his head and pulled the trigger. It fired.

Always think of code word

By Oswald & James Jacoby

Beginners are taught to try to develop the suit with the greatest potential when playing notrump contracts.

This is a mighty good general principle, but it is far more important to take advantage of the H in the code word ARCH and ask yourself, "How can I make this contract?" when you plan your play.

If South wins the heart lead in dummy and if he doesn't stop to count to nine he will lead a club at trick two.

West	North	East	South
			1♣
Pass	1♦	Pass	2N.T.
Pass	3♣	Pass	3N.T.
Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead—6♥

East will hop up with the ace and lead a second heart. South will finesse his jack unsuccessfully and West will clear the suit with a third lead. At this point South will see that he need a diamond finesse to bring home th bacon. He will lose out and go one down, provided West has taken care to hold on to both his hearts.

If South stops to Count his winners, the C of ARCH, he will see that he needs two diamonds and four clubs for his contract. He will also see that if he takes a diamond finesse at trick two he will be able to lose it with complete safety. West will be on lead and won't be able to hurt him with a heart play.

South will clear the clubs next and wind up with his contract and one or two overtricks. A far better result than down one.

School dress regulation is challenged

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Five South San Francisco elementary school girls filed suit in federal court recently for permission to wear pants to school.

The five said their civil rights were being violated by a school regulation that girls must wear dresses.

The five are students at the Los Cerritos school. The suit said the rule of "dresses for girls and trousers for boys" has "no rational relationship to the enhancement of the educational function nor to the health, welfare, safety or discipline of the students."

They also claimed they were discriminated against "solely because they are female."

The five were Deborah Diane Kavanaugh, 8; Gina Carrie Sheets, 11; Jeannie Diane Costa, 7; Alicia Dawn Taylor, 9; and Tracie Shawn Taylor, 6.

Mansfield: no pressure to get Nixon out

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield said that his colleagues "aren't putting any pressure on me" to try to force President Nixon out of office after Gerald R. Ford's confirmation as vice president.

Mansfield told reporters he believed Ford would serve as vice president for "three years, one month and a few days," indicating he did not anticipate Nixon's resignation or impeachment.

Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott also told newsmen he did not expect increased pressure for Nixon to step down because the No. 2 vacancy was being filled.

"No I do not expect it," Scott said. "What I expect is more questions (from reporters) like that."

Vaulting to Broadway

By JOSEPH FIRMAN

Far (but not very) be it from me to try to steal the thunder of our young musical comedy writers — Victor Herbert, Sigmund Romberg et Al Goodman — but it seems to me that they are all missing a good bet in not setting one of their shows in a bank.

The recent TV rendition of "My Fair Lady" skated from market place to ballroom. Shows have been staged in deserts ("Desert Song,") on an island ("New Moon"), on the Mississippi ("Old Man Show Boat") and in libraries, pajama factories and ball parks.

What's the matter with a good old, marble-pillared, wicketed, vaulted, hushed, clinking bank? The stone floor would be excellent for the tap-dancing chorus line of cashiers and for the ballet sequence representing the libidinous dreams of the third vice president.

The very nature of a bank is fraught with drama. All that money!

There would be a romance between the new clerk, Jimmy, handsome young tenor, and the soubrette, Janey, who wears glasses and her hair in a bun. At the end she takes off her glasses and combs out her hair to reveal that she's just as ugly as before.

Janey and Jimmy hate each other at first, of course, and fight all the time (comical angry duet). She louses up his IBM machine; he accuses her of filching dimes from petty cash. But finally, you know, True Love emerges and — Gosh, I'm all choked up.

For sub-plots we can have a crooked treasurer, a baritone, say, who is slowly embezzling the resources. Of course he's in love with Janey, too. And, see, when Jimmy unmasks the fraud, she thinks he's just jealous because the treasurer has been nuzzling her among the negotiable securities.

Is this a show or is this a show?

There will be a holdup, naturally — I see this along toward the end of the second act — machines guns, masks, possibly the shooting of a vice president or two. Show biz has its serious side, too, you know.

And right there, waving his shotgun as he stuffs his valise with ballpoint pens and free calendars, the head gunman nods at the tenor and says, "Thanks, Jimmy."

Fingers him, see? Makes it look as if — or maybe it turns out that the gunman . . . is actually . . . Jimmy's father! Wow!

Better still (how much of this can you stand?) he is Jimmy's LONG-LOST daddy and puts the finger on him unknowingly. Does Jimmy squeal on the old buzzard or hold his silence, from filial love and a cut of the loot?

In a heart-touching aria that will dampen every blotter in the bank, Jimmy introduces Janey to his old man. ("Sweetheart, This Is My Father, Aces O'Rourke.") Pop bows low over his hand, tears in his eyes, whilst prodding her in the corsage with his shotgun.

The sight of the girl's innocent beauty and the realization of what he is doing to his son's career has no effect on the old bandit. (Bass solo: "Bankin' on my Little Boy.") He then blasts them both with his shotgun and escapes with $561,000.43 and four calendars.

There are still a few bugs in the production, of course, but I'm sure they can all be cleared up in the out-of-town opening.

National effects of energy crisis

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — Christmas lights will glow in the downtown shopping area starting Monday despite the national energy crisis.

City commissioners agreed with downtown merchants that no electricity shortage exists here and complied with a request to light the decorations five days earlier than planned.

Commissioner James Barker said leaving the Christmas lights off would be similar to asking Salt Lakers to go hungry one day a week because there is a famine in India.

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Metropolitan Transportation Authority said it will institute beginning Dec. 16 special "two-for-one" fares on city buses, subways and commuter lines to encourage residents to leave their cars home on "gasless Sundays."

MTA Chairman William J. Ronan said that beginning Dec. 16, "we are offering round-trip transportation on the subways and buses in New York City, the Long Island Rail Road, the Harlem, Hudson and New Haven commuter lines of Penn Central and the Staten Island Rapid Transit line for the price of a normal one-way fare" on Sundays.

The special fares will be valid for at least five Sundays, ending Jan. 13.

Ronan said the experiment proves successful, the special Sunday fares will be extended indefinitely.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In an an energy saving effort, the Navy has ordered three of its laboratories, employing a total of some 8,500 persons, shut down from Dec. 22 until Jan. 2.

A spokesman said employees of the installations have been urged either to take their regular paid vacations during the holiday period or to take off a week without pay. He said those who "object really strongly" to this arrangement, however, would be allowed to work.

Total energy savings anticipated from the shut downs, the spokesman said, include at least 98,000 gallons of heating oil, 4,600 gallons of gasoline and 1.4 million killowatt hours of electricity.

The closings involve the Naval Research Laboratory in Washington, D.C., the Naval Weapons laboratory in Dahlgren, Va., and the Naval Air Development Center in Warminster, Pa.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Can a car run efficiently on a mixture of gasoline and water?

The U.S. Postal Service doesn't know but is testing the mixture in four mail delivery trucks as a possible energy-saving technique using mixtures ranges from 15 per cent water up to 30 per cent water.

The idea was originated by professor Walter J. Ewbank of the University of Oklahoma's aerospace, mechanical and nuclear engineering department, the Postal Service said.

In research under way since 1965, Ewbank has developed an emulsifying technique to hold the water in suspension in the gasoline. Otherwise, the lighter gasoline would float to the top.

Ewbank said an easy adjustment of the carburetor, which takes about 15 minutes, also is required to use the mixture.

TRENTON, N.J. (UPI) — The energy crunch is about to hit beer drinkers in three New Jersey counties.

John J. Garrity, executive director of the state Beer Distributors Association (BDA), said Thursday that 11 of 65 association members would have to cut back deliveries of keg and bottled beer in Mercer, Monmouth and Ocean counties because of the gasoline shortage.

Garrity said customers in the three counties have been notified that only one delivery per week would be made. Customers in the three counties have been advised to keep a 10-day inventory of beer on hand, but may be helped out in the case of a rush of businss, Garrity said.

STUDY IN CONTRASTS — The Christmas season is a dark one for Detroit, top picture, as store and office lights blink out at day's end as if a giant Scrooge were flicking the switch. However, just across the river is Windsor, Ontario, Canada, bottom photo, a city unscathed by fuel shortages and other attacks on the holiday spirit. Energy-gobbling light bulbs crisscross main streets and gaudy hanging candles beam on drivers who don't have to line up for gas.

Reduced car insurance proposed by Moretti

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Assembly Speaker Bob Moretti thinks Californians should be granted reductions in car insurance rates because they are driving at slower and safer speeds due to the energy crisis.

"The total number of claims is going to drop sharply as people drive less and do their driving at lower speeds during the energy crisis," the Van Nuys Democrat said Thursday.

"People with policies now in force should receive an immediate reduction or refund on their premiums," he added. "New policies likewise should reflect the changes in driving patterns and speeds in their cost to the motorist."

Moretti noted the National Safety Council is estimating that up to 15,000 fewer highway deaths will occur next year because of new driving habits. Last year there were about 57,000 traffic fatalities.

"Another factor affecting claims is that many people are trading in their large and standard size cars for economy models. Obviously, a crunched VW fender can be repaired for a lot less than a Cadillac's," the Democratic gubernatorial hopeful said.

Moretti said the insurance industry can demonstrate its "responsibility at a time of national crisis" by lowering premium of motorists.

Shortages gloom seen in report

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Americans will be hit by "the most grievous shortages ever experienced in this country" if gasoline rationing and other mandatory energy conservation rules are not imposed promptly, a congressional report said today.

A study prepared by the Senate Interior Committee said shortfalls in oil supplies were far more severe than the government had predicted and could go as high as 5 million barrels a day by spring.

"The extent of the shortages and the threat they pose to the economy and to national security exceed by far any savings resulting from measures taken to date," the report said. "It seems clear that, under any set of circumstances which does not include an immediate resumption of the flow of Arab oil, the United States must anticipate the mose grievous shortages ever experienced in this country."

The study called for "strict motor-gasoline rationing ... at once," immediate regulations to increase heating oil refining further, and mandatory measures to accomplish energy savings.

The chairman of the Interior committe, Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., said that in analyzing potential and shortfalls, the study indicates that failure to take decisive action now invites devastating economic impacts next spring.

"It also makes clear that the administration must not only face up to the need for immediate gasoline rationing but must also take urgent steps to reduce the drawdown of inventories now taking place," Jackson said.

$3,000 Muskie campaign gift under probe

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Republican investigators on the Senate Watergate committee have uncovered what they consider an illegal $3,000 contribution to the 1972 presidential campaign of Sen. Edmund S. Muskie from the Hertz car rental company.

A Hertz spokesman in New York City acknowledged that a former company lawyer had improperly used $1,000 in Hertz funds that were given to Muskie, but said the firm had no knowledge of any additional money.

Committee sources said today the Hertz funds were "laundered" by lawyers in New York City from Hertz corporate funds. The Hertz spokesman said any such action was done without the knowledge or consent of Hertz executives.

Chief U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica has granted immunity on request of the committee to S. M. Edidin, former general attorney for Hertz, and Barton D. Eason, another lawyer.

Berl I. Bernhard, a Washington lawyer who served as Muskie campaign director, said he had been questioned about the contribution by Senate investigators.

"I told them I didn't know anything about it," Bernhard said. "Nothing of that sort was done with any knowledge of anybody in the Muskie campaign."

Previous testimony before the committee revealed apparently illegal contributions of $15,000 to Rep. Wilbur Mills, D-Ark., and $10,000 to Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., from Gulf Oil.

Gulf is one of seven major corporations which have been fined for making illegal corporate contributions of between $40,000 and $100,000 to President Nixon's campaign.

Kaiser steel to hike some prices

OAKLAND (UPI) — Kaiser Steel Corp. has announced plans to raise prices on steel plate, bars and other products by 6.83 per cent, effective Jan. 1.

Kaiser said that it had notified the Cost Of Living Council of the price boosts.

Welfare, military dealt huge defeat in Denmark

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign Analyst

Danish voters in huge numbers have turned away from the party that gave them cradle-to-the-grave social security and supported instead an Alice-in-Wonderland candidate promising to replace the military with a telephone answering service declaring in Russian, "I surrender."

The vote by which Danish voters seemed in effect to be rejecting the world was not enough to put millionaire Mogens Glistrup into power but it was the sharpest protest yet in any of the Scandinavian states against the high cost of maintaining a welfare state.

Although Social Democratic governments continue in power in Sweden and Norway, they do so without the majorities which continued unbroken from the 1930s into the 1960s.

In Denmark, Social Democratic Premier Anker Jorgensen will continue in a caretaker role after a shattering election which reduced the number of Social Demcoratic seats in the 179-member parliament from 78 to 46. Consultations on forming a new coalition government are expected to be lengthy.

Glistrup, whose radical suggestions added an extra touch to the Danish elections, is a lawyer who admits he pays no taxes on his $650,000-a-year income. He says he is being investigated by the government for tax fraud.

United Press photo

THE NAY-SAYERS — Two of the most colorful politicians in Europe fought for the right to dismantle the Danish welfare state and eliminate income taxes. The winner, Mogens Glistrup, left, also was committed to eliminating the military. Erhard Jacobsen, right, did not want to do away with the military, but his absence at a crucial vote of parliament precipitated the election.

UPI Correspondent Richard Longworth interviewed him and asked if he was serious in his proposals.

"I stand by every single election promise and would start by abolishing the post of prime minister and accept only the job as Minister For Good Riddance Of Public Pen-Pushers."

He added that his idea for taking Denmark out of NATO would have to wait a few years "because we don't have the votes in parliament."

To his New York editors Longworth reported:

"He's not kidding at all—and Danes know he's not kidding. That's what makes the Danish elections a little scary—and a good story."

In Norway, Sweden and Denmark the Communist Party has gained a new respectability and in Sweden it is the factor which keeps the Social Democratic government of Premier Olar Palme in power.

The Swedish parliamnet is divided evenly between Socialists and non-Socialists, each side holding 175 seats. The government has launched a $600 million program of increased family allowances and public works and promised tax reforms and creaton of more jobs in order to impose its image before next year's elections.

Swedes are worried about inflation and unemployment as well as the world's highest tax bite.

The battle which ended with Norway's refusal to enter the European common market split Norway almost down the middle. High taxes also are an issue in Norway but government officials insist NATO is not an issue, that Norway is firmly committed to the Atlantic Alliance.

The erosion of Social Democratic power in the three Scandinavian countries is not new.

It was left to Danish lawyer Mogens Glistrup to dramatize it.

Legal restrictions eyed

Japan invades Hawaii--with cash

PEARL HARBOR (UPI) — The passage of time has obscured the memory of Dec. 7, 1941, when the Japanese attacked Pearl Harbor. And many young Islanders were not even born on that day.

The islands' businessmen are thinking more about the Japanese economic invasion than the day President Franklin D. Roosevelt said would live "in infamy."

To commemorate the air attack wreaths were placed Friday at the Arizona memorial above the rusted, sunken battleship, the grave for more than 1,100 sailors. But there were no big public ceremonies.

Although Hawaii has been on an active campaign for years to attract outside investments and spent $1 million at Japan's Expo '70 for this purpose, there is a mounting fear that the efforts will backfire in turning what was Hawaiian into something Japanese.

The fear of a "takeover" has become so great that some legislators have been considering laws aimed at restricting Japanese investment.

State Senate President David C. McClung said that many Islanders are afraid that Japan wants to make Hawaii "another province of the empire." The gubernatorial candidate has pointed out that the purchase of existing businesses adds nothing to the economy of Hawaii, but is a financial loss when corporate gains leave the state.

Japanese investment in Hawaii is estimated at up to $250 million, one-quarter of the total Japanese investment in the United States. There's been increasing alarm with every new announcement of the Japanese purchase of hotels, stores, golf clubs and plans for sprawling tourist complexes owned by and operated for Japanese tourists.

The investors note their ventures create more jobs, introduce new technology and skills. And they point out that the amount invested in Hawaii by Japanese is insignificant when compared to mainland United States and other foreign investments here.

But although Japanese-Americans make up 26.8 per cent of Hawaii's population, they account for over 70 per cent of the employes in Japanese owned firms here. The Japanese investor wants Japanese speaking employes, but the practice seems like discrimination to other ethnic groups.

There are now Japanese language newspapers, Japanese speaking store clerks, tour guides, signs printed in Japanese and loads of Japanese restaurants. Some U.S. tourists have complained that Waikiki is beginning to look like a little Tokyo.

The efforts to lure the Japanese traveler and his yen have paid off. Although only 14,800 vistors came to Hawaii from Japan in 1960, the number is expected to top 300,000 this year.

Despite their rising numbers and all the effort aimed at making them feel at ease, the Japanese visitors are harder to please than their counterparts from other states or countries.

The Hawaii Visitors Bureau, the state's tourism arm, found in a survey that a majority of Japanese enjoyed the friendliness and cleanliness of Hawaii, but about 80 per cent of those asked rated hotels, restaurants, transportation, tours, shops and amenities at a lower level than other tourists.

One of their complaints was there are too many Japanese.

Smoking after 65 not a danger, scientist says

MIAMI BEACH (UPI) — A Harvard scientist claims that cigarette smoking after you reach the age of 65 will not increase the risks of a heart attack.

"The Public Health Service and physicians keep telling elderly persons to quit smoking because they risk coronary heart disease," said Dr. Carl C. Seltzer of the Harvard School of Public Health in Boston. "It just isn't true and the studies have been made to prove it."

Seltzer had just presented a report on his studies to support his statement to the annual scientific meeting of the Geronotological Society in Miami Beach.

His study of the correlation between smoking and the risk of heart attack in the elderly is important, Seltzer said, because elderly people make up a large segment of our society and "they contribute fully two-thirds of all CHD (coronary heart disease) deaths in this country."

"Why don't they tell them the truth" asked the scientist, lighting up a cigar. "Why scare the life out of elderly people if they want to smoke?"

Seltzer is a round, little man who is over 65 and he smokes both cigars and cigarettes. More importantly, he said, is the fact he is secure in his job as senior research associate in biological anthropology for the Harvard school's department of nutrition.

Refuting a statement of the surgeon general or the National Heart Association, he said, "is like attacking motherhood."

"The young fellows are afraid to make a study—afraid of their jobs," Seltzer said. "Why should the Public Health Service be any more infallible than the Justice Department"

Seltzer stressed he is not being paid by any tobacco industry sources. And he ran into challenge. Questions from the floor indicated fellow scientists felt Seltzer's report did not cover enough ground— whether it was wise for the elderly to quit smoking to ward off other diseases such as respiratory ailments.

The Harvard researcher pointed out his study was limited just to heart disease among persons between 65 and 84 who had either given up smoking or were continuing to smoke. It did not consider, he said, those elderly persons who had never smoked. Nor did it deal with anyone younger than 65.

Seltzer said he obtained his statistical findings from four extensive studies of health in elderly persons: Hammond's American Men and Women; Doll and Hill's British Doctors; Kahn's report of Dorn's data on U.S. veterans; and The Framingham Heart Study of the U.S. Public Health Service.

"All four studies examined give rather consistent results indicating that there are no appreciable excess risks of CHD morbidity (illness) or mortality among elderly people continuing cigarette-smoking compared to ex-cigarette smokers and non-cigarette smokers," Seltzer's report said.

Three months later

Chile remains in military's grip

By CHARLES E. PADILLA

SANTIAGO (UPI) — Nearly three months after the military overthrew President Salvador Allende's Marxist administration, there is no indication the generals plan to relax their iron grip on Chile.

Gen. Augusto Pinochet, leader of the four-man ruling junta, made this abundantly clear several days ago in one of his toughest speeches since the bloody Sept. 11 coup that toppled Allende's regime.

"The war is not finished because there are still traitors inside and out of the country," Pinochet, the commander-in-chief of the army, said.

"We would be naive if we were not energetic now and in the future. And moreover, we will be relentless against all those who would betray the interests of Chile."

Under the new regime, virtually all aspects of life are under the influence of the military.

Several thousand persons rounded up after the coup on suspicion of being "Marxists and extremists" are still imprisoned and may be tried by military courts acting in a "state of war."

Acutely aware of what it calls the "distorted image of Chile spread by international Communism," the government has stopped announcing executions.

Government sources said that as of two weeks ago, more than 1,100 persons, including 70 military, had died in the fighting and in executions following the coup.

Several thousand more sought political asylum in various foreign embassies and more than 3,500 left the country under safe conduct passes.

Political parties have been banned, universities have military deans, labor union activities are prohibited, wages and prices are controlled, the opposition press has been shut down and a nightly curfew still is in effect.

This week, the government squeezed the vise another turn by banning all social reunions not authorized by military officers.

Although reasons for the ban were not given, reports had circulated that resistance groups were using the parties as fronts for antimilitary planning.

None of the junta members has even ventured a guess of when power will be returned to civilians. A new constitution is still in the planning stages.

Israelis watch Damascus from forward positions

By JOSEPH W. GRIG

TEL SHAMS, Israel Occupied Syria (UPI) — "Look through these field binoculars," said a young Israeli lieuttenant, "you can see Damascus."

Far in the distance, through the golden late afternoon haze, could be seen the sand colored rooftops of a big city. On the outskirts one white high rise building was clearly visible.

"That is the new Intercontinental Hotel," said Lt. Eyal— Israeli censorship allows use only of first names of officers.

Eyal is a 22-year-old from Haifa. He fought throughout the October war and has been stationed since then at an Israeli observation post on the cease-fire line atop 1,000-foot Tel Shams hill.

From here it is just 22 miles to the Syrian capital.

The hill commands a panoramic view across the brown, boulder strewn Syria plain, dominated to the north by snow-capped 9,000-foot Mt. Hermon.

Two miles to the east on the main Damascus highway is the small town of Sassa —once occupied by the Israelis but now the farthest forward point held by the Syrians.

Except for the occasional "clump, clump" of distant explosions — probably demolitions by the Israelis or Syrians —nothing broke the cease-fire quiet.

But down in Sassa men and green-and-brown painted army vehicles could be seen moving.

"Those are Syrians," Eyal said. "We see all their movements."

He said this sector of the cease-fire line has been "relatively quiet".

But the Syrians are always trying to push forward "a few meters here and a few yards there," he said. "We have to be on our watch contstantly."

From the activity and preparations on top of Tel Shams hill it was obvious the Israelis are very much "on the watch."

Half way between Tel Shams and Sassa a white building was clearly visible alongside the highway.

"That is a United Nations observer post," Eyal said.

"Are the U.N. people effective in maintaning the cease-fire?" he was asked.

"I'd rather not answer that one," he replied with a grimace.

The Israeli fortress outpost at Tel Shams was typical of similar cease-fire line strong points.

Down in the extreme southeast corner of the Syrian front a dozen Israeli soldiers in sweatshirts were engaged in a free-for-all handball game behind their heavily fortified forward observation post.

The post commander, Lt. Yossi, another blond youngster from Haifa, interrupted the game to lead the way through a series of strongly reinforced tunnels up to the sandbagged observation post itself.

Up there, 800 yards from the Syrian lines, a young sergeant was shouting in Hebrew into a field telephone.

Was he giving reports on enemy movements, Yossi was asked.

"No, he's just telephoning home to his folks in Tel Aviv," Yossi said laughing.

The brown rock-strewn hillsides spread out beneath the observation post looked like a graveyard of Russian-built Syrian armor.

Yossi said the outpost was evacuated by the Israelis during the first overwhelming Syrian advance in October but later reoccupied.

Within a few hundred yards beneath the post at least six wrecked Syrian T55 tanks could be counted. On top of one could be seen a Russian-made "Sager" missile—an antitank weapon.

"Six more of them are still inside the tank, but we cannot get them out without drawing Syrian fire," Yossi said.

Elsewhere, for miles around, the burned out and rusting hulks of scores of wrecked Syrian tanks littered the hillsides.

"They had a 10 to one numerical superiority, but we knocked out hundreds in that battle," said an Israeli major who fought in it.

"The Syrians are about 800 meters away from us and we can hee moving them around," Yossi said. "But this has been a fairly quiet sector with little trouble since the cease-fire."

At this outpost as well as others visited, the Israeli preparations in case of resumption of fighting were impressive.

"But the Syrians are ready too.

Syrian people fled from Israeli troops

KHAN ARNABA, Israeli Occupied Syria (UPI) — Down the middle of Khan Arnaba's main street rode an Israeli soldier bareback on a small black donkey, looking like a Middle Eastern Sancho Panza.

Helmeted troops in an armored convoy waiting to move up towards the Syrian ceasefire line and others lounging off duty in doorways of Arab houses cheered at the unmilitary sight.

The village streets were crowded with Israeli soldiers. But not an Arab civilian was to be seen.

Khan Arnaba, a squalid, poverty ridden village on the main highway to Damascus, was — like most other villages in occupied Syria —abandoned by its inhabitants when the Israeli army smashed to within 22 miles of the Syrian capital during the October war.

Defense Minister Moshe Dayan said recently about 15,000 fled. Military government authorities estimate only about 3,000 remained behind —most of them living in conditions of extreme poverty.

"The way they must have lived is unbelievable," said Sgt. Moshe an Israeli infantryman stationed here.

"Most of their homes are tiny hovels and in many cases they seem to have shared them with their animals," he said. "There is little running water or sanitation and it has been a big job for us to make the buildings habitable as troop billets."

When the Arabs fled, they left most of their furnitute and belongings behind —among the little black donkeys which they use for transport. Scores of donkeys can be seen roaming the bleak brown countryside in herds of 10 or 15, grazing at the roadside.

After recent torrential rains there seems to be enough grass and water for them to survive.

A few skinny brown cattle also can be seen grazing in fields some distance from here. Their owners have remained behind in hovels in the open countryside.

With such a small civilian population left, military government authorities have little to do.

"It is mainly a question of keeping an eye on the few remaining civilians, counting them and trying to organize basic food and fuel supplies, although they grow most of their own food," said a military government captain.

Israeli authorities are, however, patching up and widening the main Damascus highway which took a heavy beating from tanks and shelling during the October war and still is the main supply route for Israeli forces at the ceasefire line.

Syrian pounds remain legal currency in occupied Syria. They are worth about the same as the Israeli pound —that is about 24 U.S. cents.

In this respect the situation in recently occupied areas of Syria is unlike that in the Golan Heights area captured by Israel in 1967.

There the Israel pound has been made the only legal currency, Israeli style road signs have been put up in Hebrew, Arabic and English and a number of Israeli communal settlements have been established on the sites of abandoned Syrian army camps.

Ganesha wins U-M tournament title

By KEVIN CLOE
P-B Staff Writer

UPLAND — Ganesha High took a big step toward what cculd turn out be an historic basketball season Friday night.

The Giants, who had to settle for the runnerup spots in two tournaments and the San Antonio League race last year, claimed their first-ever Upland-Montclair Tournament championship in the Highlander gym Friday night by pulling off a thrilling 54-52 win over a rugged Azusa club.

And Ganesha had to do it differently from what the Giants are used to. All last year Ganesha was known as a team which grabbed the early lead and then sat on it, only to find itself battling to win the game in the closing minutes.

But Friday night the Giants had to come from behind to record its fourth win of the year against only one defeat.

Ganesha wasn't the only valley team to walk away with the big awards, though. Claremont knocked off Garey, 67-59, to claim the fourth place trophy, Upland slipped Northview, 71-67, to win third place, and Pomona whipped Alta Loma, 69-51, for the consolation title.

Six valley players were also voted to the All-Tournament team, including Ganesha's Cleve Porter and Broderick Hunter. The other four were Upland's Stu DuVall and Curt Oldenkamp, Claremont's Todd Ervin and Montclair's Mark Gosswiller.

The remaining five members of the 11-man all-tourney team included Bob Bishop of Northview, Jamie Broecker of Alta Loma, Mike Jantz and Sukie Melgoza of Azusa and Robert Martin of Eisenhower.

The Ganesha-Azusa tussle was close right from the start, with Aztec center Jantz dumping the first two points of the game. The game was tied four times in the quarter, and eventually ended in a tie after the first period of play.

Ganesha took the early lead when Hunter scored 15 seconds into the second quarter, but the Giants were unable to open up more through the second stanza and tied the score at 19. After Ganesha took a two-point lead again, Hunter was charged with his third foul, which meant trouble for Ganesha's rebounding game. That came with only three minutes left in the half.

Azusa finally took its first lead of the second quarter when Aztec center Mike Ayers scored with 2:25 left in the period to give Azusa a 22-21 lead. Jantz added another field goal a minute later to open the spread to 24-21. Guard Fred Davis gave Azusa a five-point lead with 50 seconds left, and the margin remained the same when the buzzer sounded—Azusa leading 28-23.

Azusa eventually opened up a 10-point lead midway through the third period, 35-25, but that's when Ganesha started its charge.

The Giants pulled to within two points of the Aztecs with 1:40 left in the third quarter, 39-37, and ended up trailing by two at the end of the period, 41-39.

The clincher ccame when Porter, who scored 27 points in the game, sank a field goal with 1:50 remaining to give the Giants a 53-51 lead. Jantz had a chance to tie it once again with 52 seconds left in the game, but made only one of two free throws.

Ganesha then installed a ball control stall, passing the ball around to eat up the clock, and little Ralph Dudley (5-foot-6) was fouled by Dave Booze with 10 seconds remaining. Dudley nervervously sank one of the two charity tosses to give Ganesha two points they peneeded.

Azusa tried one last chance to throw the game into overtime, but Davis' 25-footer from the baseline bounced off the rim at the buzzer.

Pomona got off to a slow start against Altta Loma in the consolation game, failing to score a point for the first 1½ minutes into the contest. By that time, the Braves had taken a 7-1 lead.

But the scrappy Red Devils battled back to tie the game up at 13, and hung onto the tie at the end of the period, 17-17.

Pomona tallied the first four points of the second quarter and kept the lead until Broecker tied the score at 27-all with 3:15 minutes remaining in the half.

Pomona guard Doug Moore added the next four points and the Red Devils went into the locker room at halftime with a 33-31 lead. The Devils then rolled to a nine-point lead in the third quarter, 41-32, and held a 52-45 cushion at the end of the period.

Alta Loma reeled off the first seven points of the fourth quarter, but Pomona was able to run off with a 59-45 lead and then played ball-control ball to win it.

Stu DuVall and Curt Oldenkamp paced the Upland win with 25 and 23 points respectively, but it was two free throws by Mike Matusewicz with five seconds iced it for Upland.

It was also Matusewicz' rebound after Bishop's missed field goal with 10 secons left which gave Upland the ball—the Highlanders leading by a 69-67 margin.

Upland led at halftime, 36-28, but was outscored by a 25-16 margin in the third quarter.

Garey foward Jerry Loftis hit three straight baskets, and Claremont guard Todd Ervin put in two consecutive at the beginning of the Wolfpack-Viking battle.

But the Vikings held an 18-11 edge at the end of the first period. Claremont then put together a strong second quarter, 26-13, to hold a 37-31 lead at halftime.

Year of defense for Chino teams

By GRAHAM CROW
P-B Correspondent

CHINO—It was a tough defense that led the Chino High football team into the CIF playoffs for the first time in some while this year and after two games of the basketball season it is once again the Chino defense which has enabled the Cowboys to pick up two victories.

The second came Friday night when new coach Bob Elder experienced a successful home opener as Chino downed South Hills 52-39.

The Cowboys enjoyed a distinct height advantage over their visitors from the Sierra League as South Hills spent most of the night waving hands up in the chests of Chino's front line which averages 6-6.

Offensively, 6-7 forward Tim Smith was the Cowboys' quickest draw as he scored a game high 24 points, with 20 coming in the first half. Smith only missed one shot in that half and followed his miss with a spectacular left-handed tip from about 10 feet out.

But it was the defense and the sixth man, Mark Milton, which pleased Elder the most. The Cowboys' zone defense was especially sticky in the second half, allowing South Hills only 15 points over the final 16 minutes.

And Milton is just what a coach wants in a sixth man as he has the great knack of being in tthe right place at the right time. Milton was inserted in the second half with the score tied 30-30 as Chino had just committed four straight turnovers, allowing the Huskies to catch up.

Whether it was coincidental or not, with Milton in the line-up, the Cowboys wrapped the game up by outscoring South Hills 22-3 over the next 10 minutes. In Chino's opener against Temple City, Milton scored 17 as a reserve, and added 10 Friday. Bob Hairston also tallied 10.

South Hills was forced to take most of its shots from at least 15 feet out as the Huskies were unable to go underneath with Chino's big men. Consequently, South Hills shot only 28 per cent from the floor while Chino was hitting a respectable 48 per cent, despite a dreadful one for nine performance in the third quarter.

The Cowboys will next be in action Wednesday when they face La Puente Tournament at 5 p.m. South they win, in a first round game of the Edgewood they will then tangle with the Bonita-Edgewood victor on Thursday.

Cal Poly rallies over Stanislaus

By BILL LANGLEY
P-B Sports Editor

POMONA — Cal Poly basketball coach Don Hogan was concerned as he watched his team warm up for Friday night's game against Stanislaus State at Kellogg Gym.

Hogan didn't think the Broncos were ready to play and he was correct as Poly didn't look interested in the game in the early minutes as the visiting Warriors (10-4) grabbed a 22-8 lead.

But Poly found inspiration in rallying from a 40-33 halftime deficit to record a 78-70 victory to give Hogan his first win as a head coach.

It will give the Broncos (1-2) a lift for their rugged assignment tonight against nationally-ranked Arizona (2-1) in Tucson. Tipoff at Arizona's new 13,-568-seat McKale Memorial Center is 6:30 p.m. (PST).

"We weren't ready to play," Hogan said, "and we didn't play well until the team realized the kind of effort needed to win. We still aren't playing up to our potential. If we ever put it together, we're going to surprise some people, maybe even ourselves."

Poly faced many problems during the week. Besides being burdened with final quarter exams, the Broncos lost reserve guard Brian Thomas with a broken thumb and forward John Carrillo was limping with a sprained knee.

But Carrillo was one of the Broncos coming off the bench to spark the rally. In one point, Poly outscored the Warriors, 15-0, in turning around a 40-29 deficit into a 44-40 lead.

Once Poly got into the lead, it maintained it even though Stanislaus State stayed close until the end in the sloppy game which saw both teams commit 43 turnovers.

Horace Aubrey, the transfer from Compton College, led Poly with 22 points in making 11 of 14 shots. Bill Bunker added 16 in connecting on eight of 15 while center Lee Roy Williams took care of the boards in grabbing 14 rebounds.

Carrillo played a big part in sinking all six free throws and grabbing seven rebounds.

Stanislaus guard Steve Harris, a transfer from Nevada Reno, was hot in the first half in making seven of nine shots for 18 points. He was held to 10 in the second half in settling for a career high of 28.

Steve French and Bob Berning were the only other Warriors in double figures with 10 points apiece.

Poly will have its hands full against Arizona, a young, talented team put together by Fred Snowden, a man with a sensational high school record in Detroit.

Following tonight's game, Poly has a week off to concentrate on basketball practice with no school until January. Wheaton (Ill.) visits Kellogg Gym next Saturday.

Sonics beat Lakers and end Forum jinx

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (UPI) — The Seattle SuperSonics, paced by Spencer Haywood's 29 points, ended a seven-year jinx at the Forum Friday night by beating the Los Angeles Lakers 115-111.

The Sonics had lost 20 consecutive games here and to end the streak they had to rally from a nine-point deficit in the final six minutes. Haywood emerged as the hero even though he missed 12-of-15 shots in the second half. His eight free throws in the last period proved decisive.

Six players fouled out in the wild contest and the Lakers played the last minute with four guards. Elmore Smith, Connie Hawkins and Stan Love fouled out while Happy Hairston and Bill Bridges were sidelined with injuries.

Seattle had to call an injured player, Dick Snyder, off the bench in the last two minutes when two of its guards, Don Watts, and Milt Williams, fouled out.

The Lakers led 101-92 with 6:47 remaining but Seattle rattled off 13 consecutive points —six on Haywood free throws.

Williams had 22 points, including 10 in the last period, for Seattle while Jerry West led the Lakers with 27 points and Gail Goodrich had 22.

Connie Hawkins, who had been scoring well for the Lakers, netted only eight points. But substitute guard Jim Price continued his fine play and scored 13 points in a losing cause, Love was the third leading scorer for Los Angeles with 17 points before fouling out, one of four Lakers in double figures. Seattle had six players scoring 10 or more points.

Braves, Hanley edge San Dimas by three

By CRAIG TRAVIS
P-B Staff Writer

SAN DIMAS — Baldwin Park nipped San Dimas, 60-57, Friday night, but the Braves were given a helping hand by their center.

Tom Hanley poured in 36 points and hauled down 18 rebounds to lead the Braves to their narrow win. The 6-foot-5 center, operating from the high post, hit on 16 of 28 shots and sank four of four from the foul line.

The Braves were leading 56-55 with 2:21 remaining in the game when Hanley sank two charity tosses to give them a three-point cushion.

Baldwin Park started to stall at the 1:56 mark but lost the ball out of bounds, fifty-one seconds later. The Saints hurried down court with forward John Brahs hitting a 23-footer baseline left with 32 seconds to play, making the score, 58-57.

The Braves again tried their delay tactics so Saint guard Jim Johnson fouled the first BP player that had the ball—it turned out to be Hanley. With 29 seconds left, he calmly sank a pair of free throws to put the game on ice.

The Saints' Matt Draayom attempted a desperation shot but the ball careened off the rim into the hands of Hanley where Baldwin Park stalled as the final 20 seconds ticked off the clock.

The first eight minutes were slow paced with the score tied twice and the changing hands three times. The Braves had an ttight-point lead early in the period but the Saints slowly closed the margin. BP lead after the first quarter 18-16.

The teams matched baskets in the second quarter as the contest was tied twice, 20-20 and 32-32, as the lead changed hands seven times.

San Dimas forward Greg McCrary scored eight in the period giving him 14 by halftime while Hanley had 16 for the Braves.

The Saints had a 20-point second period to give them a 36-35 lead at intermission.

The third period resembled a personal duel between Hanley and McCrary as the Brave center tallied 10 of Baldwin Parks 14 points while McCrary scored eight of SD's 12 points. The Braves held a one point lead, 49-48, entering the final eight minutes of play.

San Dimas' Johnson and Bob Childress joined McCrary and Hanley in double figures with 12 and 10 points, respectively.

The Braves shot 43.1 per cent from the field, hitting 25 of 58 attempts while the Saints hit only 21 of 56 for a 39.8 per cent night.

Coach Bob Espinoza's San Dimas club, 2-2 on the year, has only two returning lettermen from last year's 19-6 team. They are Johnson, a starting guard, and Draayom, who rarely saw action.

49ers deny rumor they want to swap Spurrier for Plunkett

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Despite denials by the San Francisco 49ers, a San Francisco newspaper reported Friday talks are continuing between that club and the New England Patriots for a trade involving former Stanford quarterback Jim Plunkett.

However, a spokesman for the Patriots, Pat Horne, said the report was "absolutely, totally unfounded."

He said Coach Chuck Fairbanks had made it clear he would not consider dealing away the former Stanford star.

According to the paper, the 49ers have offered the Pats quarterback Steve Spurrier, end Dick Witcher and the return of New England's No. 1 draft choice traded to San Francisco last year for Plunkett.

"I'll assure you we have no discussions regarding the trading of Spurrier or the acquisition of Jim Plunkett," said 49ers' President Lou Spadia.

But the paper said its sources, presumably on the Patriots, insist almost as strongly that talks are continuing for a trade involving Plunkett, who has been criticized of late on various Boston radio talk shows.

Reports have been current of late—starting with a story in the Examiner last Nov. 25 and continuing with another in the Sporting News two weeks ago— that the 49ers want Plunkett.

When the current season ends the 49ers will have only two quarterbacks—Spurrier and Joe Reed. That's because the veteran John Brodie is retiring after 17 seasons.

Originally, said the paper, the Pats were interested in Reed but when the youngster showed little in three starting roles, they switched their attention to Spurrier, a seven-year man who got his first real chance to play a year ago when Brodie suffered an injury.

Buying heavy in baseball market

HOUSTON (UPI) — Baseball's wheeling and dealing, shoved into the background by events of recent days, gained center stage again Friday with the New York Yankees getting outfielder Lou Piniella from Kansas City and Boston and St. Louis swapping six players— five of them pitchers.

The Yankees got Piniella, the American League rookie-of-the-year in 1969 and the league's second leading hitter in 1972, along with righthanded pitcher Ken Wright, for veteran reliever Lindy McDaniel.

Boston acquired pitchers Reggie Cleveland and Diego Segui and infielder Terry Hughes from St. Louis for pitchers John Curtis, Lynn McGlothen and Mike Garman.

The Texas Rangers were involved in a pair of deals, buying veteran outfielder Cesar Tovar from Philadelphia for $40,000 and sending switchhitting catcher-infielder Bill Sudakis to the Yankees for a player to be named later, or cash.

The Phils, after sending Tovar to Texas, bought veteran reliever Eddie Watt from Baltimore and Pittsburgh sent righthander Bob Johnson to Cleveland for minor league outfielder Bill Flowers.

The Montreal Expos sold 38-year-old outfielder Felipe Alou to the Milwaukee Brewers for an undisclosed amount of cash. The Expos had purchased Alou Sept. 6 from the Yankees where he batted .236 in 93 games. In 19 games with Montreal, he hit .208.

The Yankees-Royals swap, coming on the final day of the winter meetings, was the first major one here for the Yankees, who, as general managing partner Gabe Paul admitted, have been hindered trying to make a trade without a manager.

Even without trading, the Yanks would have considered the meetings a huge success if they had only won Oakland owner Charlie Finley's permission to sign Dick Williams as manager.

But Finley continues to maintain Williams is his manager and will open the season with the A's.

"I consider Piniella one of the best hitters in the American League," said Paul of the 30-year-old rightanded batter. Piniella, the last player on the Royals' roster who had been with the club since its inception in 1969, slumped last season to a .250 batting average but did knock in 69 runs. The year before, Piniella ranked second in the AL with a .312 batting average. He also hit .301 in 1970.

"We do hate to part with Piniella and Wright," said Cedric Tallis, executive vice president and general manager of the Royals. "Lou has been an improtaant part of our growing years, and has been extremely popular with our fans, and Ken has shown a great deal of raw talent."

Wright, 27, posted a 6-5 record with a 4.91 earned run average in 25 appearances for the Royals last season.

McDaniel, who will be 38 next Thursday and begins his 20th season in the majors next year, was 12-6 and had 10 saves in 47 appearances for the Yankees in 1973. His 114 lifetime relief victories place him second only to Hoyt Wilhelm's 123 and his 170 lifetime saves trails only Wilhelm's 216 and Elroy Face's 194.

The Boston-St. Louis trade ended all speculation of a possible deal between the Red Sox and Cleveland that would have sent former Cy Young Award winner Gaylord Perry to Boston.

"We thought Reggie Cleveland would help us more in the long run than Perry," said Dick O'Connell, vice president of the Red Sox. "Perry beats us all the time, but he is 35, while Cleveland can help us for years to come."

Cleveland, 25, was 14-10 with a 3.01 ERA while Segui, 35, the Cardinals' top reliever, made 65 appearances and posted a 7-6 mark with 177 saves. Hughes played most of the 1973 season at Tulsa of the American Association, but in 11 games with St. Louis batted .214.

"We wanted to get a lefthanded starter and we got one who our scouts tell us they like very much," said Cardinals Manager Red Schoendienst about the 25-year-old Curtis.

Curtis was 13-13 last season, with a 3.58 ERA; McGlothen, 23, like Curtis a lefthander, was 1-2 with an 8.22 ERA; and Garman, 24, had no record in 12 appearances.

Tovar, 33, got into 97 games with the Phils last season, batting .268 with one homer and 21 RBIs. He owns a .280 lifetime batting average for eight seasons in the majors, but is probably best known for having played all nine positions on the field for Minnesota in a game on Sept. 22, 1968.

Watt, 31, goes to the Phils after posting a 3-4 record with five saves and a 3.30 ERA in 30 relief appearances for Baltimore last season.

Sudakis, 27, missed about a quarter of the 1973 season for the Rangers after sufffering a severe hamstring pull, but finished with a .255 average and 15 home runs.

JUNGLE JULIE — That's what her teammates at Lincoln High in Sacramento call Julie Ludovina (right), who is believed to be the only female wrestler in the nation on a high school team.

Sports in brief

'Jungle Julie' loses

JULIE LUDOVINA, a 16-year-old sophomore called "Jungle Julie" by her teammates, may be tthe only female high school wrestler in the nation.

"She hangs right in there", said Robert Mars, wrestling coach at Lincolon High School in Sacramento.

At 5'5" and 127 pounds, Julie had her first match Wednesday night and her opponent was Bill Fox of Kennedy High, a 112-pounder.

The match was over in 30 seconds. "Jungle Julie" was pinned.

LEE TREVINO surged back into contention with a sizzling 65 Friday, placing him second in the Mexican Open Golf Tourney behind Ed Byman and Boulder, Colorado.

Byman has posted a 139 total over 36 holes while Trevino is one stroke back at 140. Trevino's 65 was a tournament record for the Mexico City course.

PEPPER RODGERS, who became Georgia Tech's new football coach this week, said Player recruitment will be the primary objective in building up the sagging Yellow Jackets' gridiron fortunes.

At his first press conference in Atlanta, Rodgers indicated he intended to build a winner at Tech as quickly as possible.

"Football is fun when you're winning . . . there is no such thing as fun losing football", Rodgers said.

ALLAN HEYMAN, president of the International Lawn Tennis Federation, charged the Association of Tennis Professionals with a "dictatorial attitude" and blamed them for the troubles the game is currently experiencing.

The ILTF and the ATP have been at odds since last summer when the ITLF's ban on Nikki Pilic at Wimbledon led to an ATP boycott of the event.

Gary Edwards of the Los Angeles Kings and Bobby Schmautz of the Vancouver Canucks have been suspended for one game and fined $200 for a recent stick-swinging incident.

The exchange took place in the Kings-Canucks contest of Tuesday night, which was won by the Kings 3-2.

OHIO STATE resumed drills Friday in preparation for its' Rose Bowl meeting with Southern California.

Coach Woody Hayes indicated he plans to hold six of his squads alloted 16 workouts in Columbus before flying to the coast, Dec. 20.

Champ Henson, injured early in the season, took part in the workout and could be ready to play against the Trojans.

JOHN NEWCOMBE of Australia retired when he held match point against Tom Okker Friday night to allow the Dutchman into the final of the Commercial Union Masters Tennis Tournament for a meeting with defending champion Ilie Nastase of Romania.

Newcombe led Okker, 6-3, 5-7, 5-3, when he appeared to pull a hamstring muscle and was unable to continue. Earlier, Nastase defeated his former doubles partner, Jimmy Connors of Belleville, Ill., 6-3, 7-5.

BETSY CULLEN took the lead in the Keauhou-Kona Pro-Am invitational golf tournament Friday with a 36-35-71.

JIMMY CONNORS has agreed to play for the U. S. Davis Cup Tennis Team next year, Dennis Ralston announced Friday.

Temple City and L.A. notch CIF playoff wins

Los Altos and Crespi, two schools who stepped up a notch in class this year, will face each other Friday night for the CIF 4-A football championship, with the game probably taking place at the L. A. Coliseum.

Los Altos, defending 3-A champion, knocked off its third straight Orange County foe Friday as Mike Hill's 98-yard kickoff return sparked the Conquerors over Anaheim, 34-20.

Crespi, who was defeated in the 3-A semis last year, upset top seeded St. Paul 7-3 to earn the right of facing Los Altos.

Temple City will be gunning for its fourth consective 2-A crown against North of Riverside. Temple City eliminated Rio Mesa as Rick Brown paced the winners with 105 yards in 20 carries and two touchdowns. North upset Neff 34-21.

In the 3-A decider, it will be Crescenta Valley against top ranked Monrovia. Crescenta, which knocked off Pomona in the first round, stopped St. John Bosco 34-19 and Monrovia handled Villa Park, the ousters of Chino, 26-14.

Imperial and Paso Robles will meet for the 1-A title.

Baseball to drop charter flights?

HOUSTON (UPI) — Commissioner Bowie Kuhn said Friday he had urged baseball's 24 major league teams to investigate the possibility of using commercial rather than charter flights in 1974 in an attempt to save fuel.

Kuhn said further plans by baseball to help do its share during the energy crisis would be coordinated through his office before the season begins.

In a briefing near the end of the baseball winter meetings, Kuhn also said that while the American League's designated hitter rule still officially was considered as experimental, it could realistically be expected the rule would be retained.

Kuhn also said the two leagues were considering moving the All-Star Game from July to September.

"We have agreed that the clubs should consult with their air carriers to find out how much they can use scheduled flights as opposed to charter flights," Kuhn said.

"I think it is possible to generate a considerable amount of savings of charter time. These flights constitute the most significant amount of petroleum usage by baseball."

Such suggestions as more day games and a shorter schedule, Kuhn said, would be discussed after information is gathered from each major league team.

"We are fortunate to have some time left before next season to obtain this information,'' the commissioner said.

When the AL adopted the designated hitter rule before last season it was agreed the rule would be experimental for three seasons. But Kuhn said the rules committee had decided to lift the three-year limitation although technically the rule still remains experimental.

"I think you could say that this has gone a long way toward taking the experimental phase out of the rule," Kuhn said.

But because technically, the designated hitter remains an experiment, the American League could not consider the implementation of a designated runner because no league can have two experimental rules at the same time, Kuhn said.

Kuhn said minor leagues, however, will be allowed to experiment with a designated runner rule in 1974, one that allows a player to come into a game twice to pinch run with the person replaced on he basepaths allowed to stay in the game to bat and play defense.

Rules committee chairman Johnny Johnson said both leagues also would experiment with a new "balk line" during spring training. Johnson said the test was an attempt to help umpires.

During spring training games, a chalk line (or tape on artificial surfaces) will be drawn from the back of home plate to a corner of the pitcher's rubber. If a pitcher throws to first base in an attempt to pick off a runner, the pitcher must step over the line or he commits a balk.

Kuhn said general managers had approached him about playing the All-Star Game after Labor Day and that the proposal would be given consideration.

"It was thought by some that the three-day all-star break in July comes at a time when there is usually perfect playing weather," Kuhn said. "Some felt that was a waste.

"Also, there were those who believed that an All-Star Game in September might rejuventate interest if pennant races were no longer hot," the commissioner added.

Walnut, Tigers win

Three local schools posted wins in Friday's basketball action, while Webb continued the 1973 season without a victory.

Walnut, paced by Kirk Christ's 36 points, beat Rowland, 71-61, Chaffey won third Place in the Arroyo Tourney with a 64-62 win over Alhambra, Western Christian got by Whittier Christian 69-63, and Webb was eliminated from the Pasadena Poly Tourney by Rim of the World by a 40-37 count.

Christ helped walnut build up a 38-24 halftime lead and the Mustangs held off late-charging Rowland for the win. Robert Malave paced the Raiders with 22 points in a losing cause.

Chaffey overcame a 21-10 first quarter deficit to dump Alhambra and clinch third place in the Arroyo Tourney. Sophomore guard Mark McQuaid led the way with 15 points, while center Harley Stark added 14. San Gabriel, the team that Chaffey lost to in the tourney, won the championship with a 57-51 win over Edgewood.

Western Christian remained undefeated on the season with its' win over Whittier Christian Norm Moline led the way with 20 points, while Sam Shumaker added 16 and Bruce Snider had 14 more.

Webb shot only 30 per cent from the field and as a result were dumped by Rim of the World. The loss eliminated the Gauls from further tourney play. Guard John Baer led Webb scoring with 16 points while Bob Corwin of Rim had 18 for top individual scoring honors.

Walnut and Western Christian are still undefeated on the young season with identical 2-0 records. Chaffey is now 4-2 in 1973 while Webb is still looking for its' first win after four losses.

May change reliever rule

HOUSTON (UPI) — Baseball's rules committee proposed a scoring change Friday which would make it tougher for a relief pitcher to earn a save.

Currently, the scoring rule awards a save to the relief pitcher who finishes a game and protects a lead, no matter how short a time he pitches or how big a lead he protects.

The rule change would specify that a relief pitcher must pitch "three effective innings," or to have entered the game with the tying or winning runs on base.

If more than one pitcher qualifies for a save, the pitcher to be credited with the save is left to the discretion of the official scorer.

The rule will be discussed with the Baseball Writers Association of America by major league officials before adoption is considered.

Abend keeps Europe title

HAMBURG, Germany (UPI) — West Germany's Lothar Abend today retained the European super-featherweight boxing title on a 15-round decision over Ugo Poli of Italy.

It was the third successful title defense for Abend who captured the European crown Oct. 13, 1972, on a decision over Domenico Chiloiro of Italy.

WALNUT — Rio Hondo's Fred Haberecht and Mt. San Antonio's Gary Nash battled evenly for about a half Friday night.

But when the MSAC center was out of the game the Rio Hondo center took charge and led the Roadrunners to a 72-56 win, their fourth victory in six games. It was MSAC's sixth loss in eight contests.

Haberect, a 6-foot-8 sophomore, scored 24 points and pulled down 14 rebounds to lead in both departments.

Nash scored 11 points and grabbed 11 rebounds, while playing only about half of the game. He left midway through the first 20 minutes with three personal fouls, and again about halfway in the second when the game was no longer in doubt.

The roadrunners put it out of reach early in the second half, outscoring the Mounties 13-4 to take a 20-point advantage, 56-36, with 14 minutes to go.

The contest was in doubt most of the first half as the Mounties held leads briefly before Rio Hondo pulled into a 12-point advantage with 3:15 to go before intermission.

MSAC rallied at the end as forward Carl Williamson canned six of his 10 points in the last 2½ minutes to slice thes Roadrunners lead to 35-28 at intermission.

Williamson and Nash were the only Mounties in double figures. Gary Melugin, a freshman from Ganesha High, was next with eight points.

Forward Tim Dwyer had 13 for the Roadrunners and guard Mike Batterton added 10 points. Dwyer and Larry Brooks each pulled down eight rebounds.

Both teams return to action tonight. MSAC visits cross-valley rival Chaffey for an 8 o'clock game, while Rio Hondo travels to Fullerton.

CHAMP EYES LOS AL — Owner Bill Smith and trainer Jim Dennis will begin 1974 with the same major concern that haunted them throughout most of '73 — competition for their Horse of the Year, Sir Dalrae.

"We hope to get a race for him when harness racing returns to Los Alamitos," Smith says. "But we had plenty of trouble finding competition at Western Harness and we may have the same problem when we bring him back after a short respite."

Sir Dalrae this week was named the nation's best and the pacing champ is taking it easy at the Kama Farms at Rancho Santa Fe, near Dennis' Del Mar area home.

Reporting he was thrilled with the honor, Smith added, "He certainly deserved being named horse of the year, after all he's done, but I'm glad the voters took the entire year into account and not just the last few races."

Smith is only the second Californian to collect a Horse of the Year trophy in the 27-year history of the award. The late Saul Camp of Shafter received an award in both 1955 and '56 for his trotting demon, Scott Frost.

WESTERN HARNESS RALLIES — When final statistics are compiled for the Western Harness meet that closes tonight, officials are expecting to find a substantial uppage in mutual handle over 1972 and with a good final weekend rally, perhaps an even break in attendance.

Considering the lack of super stars such as Albatross and Super Bowl, last year's heroes, and heavy rain for several weekend programs, the fall sulky session ranked among the finest in WHR history.

★ ★ ★

SUNDAYS STILL A GO — Santa Anita officials, although an alternate schedule has been prepared, still are planning to continue with plans for Sunday racing during the 1973-74 meet.

"We can't make a change now," said an Arcadia track official. "We do have a Tuesday through Saturday schedule ready if legislation forces a change but at the moment we still plan to race on Sundays."

★ ★ ★

HE WAS THE BEST — "He never had any real competition, so you couldn't classify him with the horses running today, because they say he never beat anything. But I know myself he could beat any horse I ever saw."

That's how former riding great John Longden ranked his Triple Crown champion, Count Fleet, who passed away last week at 33.

"Compare him and Majestic Prince. I have to say that Count Fleet had all the stimina in the world — he would run two miles — and I'm not sure about Majestic Prince. I had to think that a mile and a quarter was about all the further he wanted to go."

You have to take the word of Grandpa John, a fella who both rode and trained a Kentucky Derby champion.

MORE LONGDEN STORIES — John Longden made the news in the Midwest last week but it didn't concern the death of Count Fleet. It was a juicy item related by Henry Ramirez, now a trainer on the Detroit circuit but a former Longden riding rival during the old Caliente days.

"I was just a young apprentice starting out at Agua Caliente but I'll never forget one race against Longden," Ramirez told the press.

"I'm on a horse that had Longden's mount measured, so I'm going to play it cute and come alongside of him, before going on to win the race.

"When I start to bring my horse up to Longden's horse, I see him take a hold of the reins and he eases back to join me.

"I look over to him and he spits a mouthful of tobacco juice right in my eye and I'm blinded. I have to check my horse and I finished beaten badly on the outside fence.

"There were no film patrols then and the stewards laughed at me. I went after John in the jock's room but he says, 'get lost punk' and that was that."

PINCAY TEAM RETURNS — With a new world's single season mark of more than $4 million earned by his mounts, Laffit Pincay and his bride Linda have returned to their California home, as has agent Vince DeGregory.

Laffit will vacation and await the opening of Santa Anita, while Vince enters the hospital for minor leg surgery.

MOVE FORWARD — Gusty O'Shay finished last as a mild second choice in the recent Maryland Futurity at Laurel. But regardless of his efforts in the waning weeks of 1973, the two-year-old gelding ranks as one of the Cinderella stars of the year.

Gusty is by a sire named Rose Argent, who never raced and who before late August had never sired a winner. His mama was Stormy O'Shay, who was claimed for $2,500. Their proud offspring started his racing career at Penn National, racing for a $5,000 claiming tag. He broke his maiden at Shenandoah.

Raiders host Chiefs

AFC mini-playoff

By United Press International

The Oakland Raiders and the Kansas City Chiefs will hold their own mini-playoff today as the National Football League's last two weekends open with five playoff slots still undecided.

The Raiders jumped back into the American Conference West lead last week when they beat Houston and Kansas City was tied by Cleveland. But a victory on national television today would serve only to knock the Chiefs out of contention. Still to be heard from are the Denver Broncos, who led the AFC West last week before being knocked off by Dallas.

The Broncos play San Diego Sunday and are big favorites and then face Oakland in the season finale next week. Should Kansas City defeat Oakland, the Chiefs would then be in a solid position to take the title, with San Diego (2-9-1) ending the season.

Kansas City, 6-4-2 and a half game behind Oakland, 7-4-1, won the first meeting between the two at Kansas City 16-3. The Raider offense has been sporadic lately and they've been living on their defense.

The Chiefs, who had Cleveland on the ropes last week, let them off and had to settle for a tie. The Browns scored two touchdowns in the last six minutes to earn a 20-20 tie.

The Raiders, a tough team down the stretch and even more so at home, are six-point favorites.

In the other game today, Minnesota, which clinched the NFC Central title long ago, will look to get its offense clicking again against Green Bay. The Vikings were stunned 27-0 by Cincinnati last week, their second loss in the last three games after winning their first nine.

Sunday's other key games features Washington at Dallas for the NFC East title, Cleveland at Cincinnati for life in the AFC Central, Houston at Pittsburgh, St. Louis at Atlanta and New England at Buffalo.

Games with no playoff bearing are Miami at Baltimore, the New York Jets at Philadelphia, San Francisco at New Orleans, Chicago at Detroit and Monday night's game at Los Angeles between the New York Giants and the Rams.

Dallas is faced with the task of beating a point spread — seven points — against Washington. A Cowboy victory would tie the clubs with 9-4 records and the determining factor, provided they both win their final games, will be points in head-to-head competition. Washington won the first game by seven points and Dallas will have to top that Sunday.

Dallas is a 4½-point choice. choice.

Cleveland, which always seems to come out of nowhere to earn a playoff slot, is in a do-or-die battle with Cincinnati. A cincinnati victory will virtually assure the Bengals of the AFC Central title, with Houston coming up next and with a points edge over Pittsburgh in head-to-head play.

A Cleveland victory would just about eliminate Cincinnati and force the Browns to beat Los Angeles in their finale next week.

Cincinnati, which has lost six of seven games to the Browns, is a three-point favorite.

Pittsburgh needs victories over Houston and San Francisco to insure at least a wild card slot. The Steelers, who saw a 2½-game lead evaporate by losing three straight, are 21-point favorites over the Oilers.

Buffalo, which closes out against New England and the Jets, hardly world-beaters has a shot at the AFC wild card slot and Atlanta, stunned last week by the Bills, is fighting for it in the NFC.

McCutcheon reaches goal

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Surprisingly, Lawrence McCutcheon began thinking 1,000 yards when he reported to the Los Angeles Rams' training camp this summer.

"I felt I could produce if I got the opportunity," said the Rams' second-year running back from Colorado State. "All I wanted was the opportunity."

Although McCutcheon spent most of his rookie year on the Los Angeles taxi squad and didn't carry the ball once, new Ram coach Chuck Knox gave him the chance he wanted.

Knox hasn't been sorry.

Despite sitting out two games because of a hamstring muscle pull, McCutcheon has rolled up 934 yards this year. The NFC West champion Rams have two contests left so McCutcheon should become the third back in the club's history here to rush for 1,000 yards in a season.

In addition, he has a good chance of breaking the Ram single season record of 1,090 yards set by Dick Bass in 1966.

"I feel very confident I can get 1,000 yards," said the Plainview, Tex., product. "It's just too bad I had to get hurt this season."

In McCutcheon's last two games the 6-1, 198-pounder has rushed for 304 of his yards—152 at New Orleans and 152 at Chicago last weekend.

Winners of just six games a year ago, the Rams are 10-2.

"Basically, we've got the same personnel," assessed McCutcheon, "but we've got more cohesiveness, more togetherness. This year we're a solid unit, one big family.

"We've also worked very hard this year. Of course, we worked hard last year, too. But the team that gets the most out of the hard work is going to be the team that wins."

A third round draft choice of the Rams, McCutcheon played in only three games last season. And that only was as a member of the Rams' special teams.

As a senior in college, he suffered a knee injury that required surgery.

"It still bothered me last year," McCutcheon remarked. "It's fine now, though."

The soft-spoken Texan, who has seven brothers and four sisters, thinks he has a long way to go in spite of his impressive statistics.

"I was very confident I could start when we reported to training camp," he offered, "but I also knew my greatest weakness was blocking and you have to be able to block to play for Coach Knox. I'm not entirely satisfied with it yet but I think my blocking has gotten better and better every week."

Ditto the Rams.

"I think we're a great team," he said, "and I think we've done some great things but I think we can and will improve this season. We're capable of being better.

"I honestly feel we can go all the way. I think the only ones who can stop us are ourselves."

A 1,000-yard season won't be anything new for McCutcheon. He did it twice at Colorado State, rushing for 1,008 yards in 1970 and 1,112 in '71.

In his first varsity season at Fort Collins, Colo., he was voted the Western Athletic Conference's outstanding back.

UCLA goes for 78 vs. SMU tonight

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — UCLA's basketball Bruins, who barely got past Maryland last weekend, go after their 78th straight victory Saturday night against Southwest Conference favorite Southern Methodist.

The Bruins' NCAA record win streak is expected to be in jeopardy when they face No. 2 ranked North Carolina State at St. Louis next weekend.

John Wooden's top-rated Bruins are coming off a 65-64 victory over Maryland here last weekend, their second win of the season.

The Mustangs were 10-15 last season but are 2-1 this year, including a 77-73 triumph over Missouri. Their lineup includes 6-foot-8 sophomore center Ira Terrell and 6-7 senior forward Sammy Hervey. SMU's other top players are 6-9 Jeff Cummings and 6-3 John Sagehorn.

"I don't know anything about Southern Methodist," said Wooden, "except that they're favored to win their conference."

For the Bruins, Bill Walton will open at center, Keith Wilkes and Dave Meyers at forwards and, Tommy Curtis and Pete Trgovich at guards.

In UCLA's first two games, the 6-11 Walton scored 41 points and pulled down 44 rebounds. Wilkes is averaging 15.0 points and Trgovich 11.0.

Kings hopeful Whiting, Goring can play tonight

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (UPI) — Centers Whitey Widing and Butch Goring, who have been injured, may return tonight when the NHL Los Angeles Kings host the Atlanta Flames.

The Kings have taken two straight after a 10-game winless streak.

"I'm very happy," said Kings' coach Bob Pulford. "Our goaltenders (Rogie Vachon and Gary Edwards) are playing very well and so is the defense. I think the goals will come when we loosen up—and that will come with winning. You get tight when you're losing. You want to make everything perfect instead of just blasting away at the net."

The Kings beat the Pittsburgh Penguins 4-1 at home Wednesday night with Edwards in goal.

WFL to stress offense

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Pro sports entrepreneur Gary Davidson, embarking on his most ambitious enterprise yet, is hoping the World Football League will put high scoring, wide-open offenses back in control in pro football.

"We feel the professional and college game is dominated by defense and the field goal and we think an offensive game is more exciting," said Davidson.

To liven up the offenses, the new league has brought back the old American Football League two-point conversion and has adopted a rule which will bring all missed field goals back to the line of scrimmage, rather than giving the other team possession on their 20-yard line. The regulation is intended to discourage teams from going for long-yardage field goals.

"We're also considering ways of protecting the quarterback better by giving offensive linemen more latitude as far as holding is concerned," said Davidson.

"We're trying to bring back more scoring and to restrict the defense from dominating the game. Did you see that Michigan-Ohio State game? (a 10-10 tie). I thought it was very boring and we'd like to add more excitement to the game."

The arts of league-building are familiar to Davidson, the 39-year-old lawyer who founded, ruled over, and then resigned from the American Basketball Association and the World Hockey Association. He's been working full-time on his latest project since resigning as WHA president last month.

Beginning in June, Davidson said, the WFL will begin playing a schedule of mid-week games with at least eight teams and possibly as many as 12. Franchises are already confirmed in Southern California, New York, Chicago, Honolulu and Toronto. Davidson is negotiating with groups in the Jacksonville-Orlando, Fla., area, Boston, Detroit, Washington, D.C., Birmingham, Memphis, Tulsa-Oklahoma City, Vancouver, B.C., and Portland.

Davidson also envisions future franchises, owned and operated by "natives," in London, Mexico City, and Tokyo.

"We haven't canceled the possibility of playing in Tokyo in 1974," he said, "and Mexico City is very possible. But we're going to firm up our teams in North America first. The foreign teams will probably be the last to join."

The league will hold its player draft in January and Davidson forsees no problems in finding good ballplayers, despite competition from the National Football League and the Canadian Football League.

"Over 7,000 college seniors play football each year," he said "and the pros only draft about five or six hundred. They only sign 100 or 150 at maximum. And each season a lot of players are put on waivers. We also think there are a lot of retired players who would consider coming back if they were offered the right money."

The 20-game regular season schedule, with games played on Wednesday and Thursday nights, will run from June into middle November, finishing before the NFL season gets into full swing.

"The only competition you have in midsummer is baseball, but in the fall there's hockey, basketball, and the end of baseball. And Wednesdays and Thursday are good nights for promotion."

The search for good franchise owners, Davidson added, is always a critical step. In addition to having the finances, they have to be tough competitors who want to win.

No UCLA mystique

State staying cool

NEW YORK (UPI) — North Carolina State basketball coach Norman Sloan, whose Wolfpack team was generally conceded to have the best chance of knocking off UCLA during the 1973-74 regular season, professed no boost in confidence by the scare thrown at the Bruins by Maryland, a team State beat three times last year.

"I don't think it's going to have any affect on our team,' Sloan said in a telephone interview of Maryland's Near derailment of UCLA's 77-game winning streak. The 65-64 UCLA victory was the Bruins' tightest contest since a 1971 win over Long Beach State in the Western Regionals, 57-55.

Sloan conceded the Bruins' phenomenal winning streak may have built up a mystique of invincibility around UCLA, but not as far as the Wolfpack is concerned.

"It (the streak) may have had an effect on some people," said Sloan. "But I don't think any mystique would have an effect on anyone playing in this league."

N. C. State plays in the Atlantic Coast Conference, whose members take a fanatical parochial pride in the selfproclaimed "toughest basketball conference in the country."

The Wolfpack, ranked second to UCLA nationally, plays the Bruins on a neutral court in St. Louis Dec. 15, a nationally televised showdown prompted by State's undefeated season last year. The two did not meet last season because State was ineligible for the championship tournament after being placed on probation by the NCAA.

The Wolfpack is led by swingman David Thompson, a 6-5 sensation who made all-America as a sophomore last year.

Boston Celtics coach Tom Heinsohn said of Thompson, "In our rating system, the highest number is five. Thompson gets 10 on his shooting alone."

Thompson's returning Wolfpack help is approximately a foot away in either direction—7-foot-4 Tom Burleson or 5-7 Monte Towe. They are joined in the starting lineup by junior Tim Stoddard and all-America junior college transfer Morris River.

Although Maryland's near-upset of the Bruins in UCLA's Pauley Pavillion surprised many, Sloan said, "The only thing that would have surprised me in that game is if one team had won by a large margin. We knew Maryland was one of the best teams in the country.

"Nobody believes me, but we aren't even thinking about that game yet," Sloan commented.

Asked if he planned any strategic changes for dealing with UCLA's 6-11 Bill Walton, Sloan replied, "We never have made any special changes to play anybody in the past few years; we're not going to now."

The flashy Sloan, whose brightly-colored checked sports coats and pants have become his ACC signature, replacing his once-explosive temper and "Stormin' Norman" tag, is taking a staid approach to State's long-awaited crack at UCLA.

PVCH doctors watch TV too--for learning

POMONA — When doctors at Pomona Valley Community Hospital drop in to the medical library to watch television, they're not looking for entertainment.

To help them keep up with advances in medical care, the hospital has a closed-circuit television center where video cassettes make possible instant viewing of programs devoted to medical topics.

Programs are scheduled Wednesday and Friday mornings but the cassettes also are available for individual playing by the physician at his convenience. Viewing the programs on monitor sets in the medical library enables the physician to consult pertinent medical literature in the same visit.

It's all part of the medical staff's new emphasis on medical education as a prime ingredient in improved health care.

"Continuing medical education means bringing new knowledge to the hospital and putting it to work here," said Dr. John A. Gius, director of medical education.

Rapid advances in medicine pose a continuing problem for the 185 doctors on the Pomona Valley staff, as they do for doctors everywhere. The video cassette is the latest tool in the effort to keep up.

Source of Pomona Valley's programming is the Network for Continuing Medical Education which supplies the hospital with new programs every two weeks on three or more medical subjects.

Museum has something for all ages

LOS ANGELES — What do they have in common—a group of school children gazing in awe at the skeleton of a mammoth, a man sketching an ancient Spanish helmet, a high school class looking over a space capsule, a group of senior citizens listening to a chamber music concert?

They are a few of the 1.6 million people who last year visited the exhibits and activities of the Natural History Museum of Los Angeles County in Exposition Park.

This is a museum of, by and for the residents of the county, a vast repository of scientific, historical and cultural specimens and artifacts, a spectrum of world history from 40,000-year-old fossils to space-probing missiles.

Founded in 1911, the museum is the largest facility of its kind in the West. In its more than 30 halls and galleries it tells the history of America, particularly western America, and examines and exhibits the history of the earth back to prehistoric times. The museum boasts the world's largest collection of Ice Age fossils, displays of the arts and crafts of early man, and a colorful and unique representation of the history of California.

Museum collections number more than seven million specimens, ranging from mammals, birds, insects, fossils and minerals, to tools, art objects, craftwork, weapons, vehicles, maps and documents. Under direction of Dr. Giles Mead, a large staff (including 14 Ph. D.'s) is constantly at work classifying and documenting the growing collection and expanding it in research projects all over the world.

Double-sided living room answers needs

By HIAWATHA ESTES

There are those who prefer a home with a living room at the front of the house together with all the advantages associated with such a location. Conversely, there are others who prefer a home design where the living room is at the rear. Here is a home where such a decision is not necessary since the living room faces both directions.

From the roofed front porch, twin doors open to a wide entry. A wall of storage closets separate the entry and dining. A spacious country kitchen is accessible from the entry as well as the garage. A wide pantry adds considerable storage space to this room. Three 5-feet wide windows on one wall join sliding glass doors at the rear wall to form a wall of glass which will visually extend this room to include the entire rear yard!

A handsome corner fireplace dominates the L-shaped living-dining room. This room has as much glass area as the country kitchen, as wide windows are located in both the front and rear walls and sliding glass doors offer access to the wide patio at the rear of the home. Particularly note the wall-enclosed court at the front of the home. The court could be used as an outdoor living area or landscaped and utilized as a garden.

The stunning master bedroom suite consists of a huge bedroom, a dressing area with a wide wardrobe, a twin pullman lavatory and a private bath.

This same basic exterior is also available in both a two and a four bedroom floor plan, at a different price structure, and is illustrated in our book, Hallmark Homes.

Complete working drawings for plan 31103 can be purchased for only $12.55 for the first set and $6.30 for each additional set ordered at the same time. This plan will be available at these special prices until April 9, 1974. Please allow two to three weeks for delivery. A specification booklet is available for $1.05. A large reproduction rendering of the exterior is available for $1.05.

The following home plan books are also available: Distinctive Homes—$1.31; Prize Homes—$1.31; Hallmark Homes—$1.31; Town & Country Homes—$1.31; Homes by Hiawatha—$1.31; Ranch & Modern Homes—$2.10. All six books—an $8.65 value—for only $6.83. Orders for less than three books, please add an extra 20c per book for postage and handling. Prices include sales tax. Send all orders to: Hiawatha Estes, P.O. Box 404-PO, Northridge, California 91324.

Do-it-yourself

Use scraps, rubble for economical garden path

By MR. FIX

Odds and ends of material have many uses if you know of a use first and keep an eye out for material that will work in. A good project to keep in mind is a path through the lawn or garden.

A garden walk can be made of many things, is useful and attractive.

It can be made of concrete, stone, broken pieces of cement, wood, gravel, bricks. Keep your eyes open for material that can be used for a path.

You also can buy the material for a path as well, but you will find that improvising not only saves money, it makes for a more interesting path as well.

Rubble from a building being torn down might serve. There may be a small charge or you might get it for the hauling. A sidewalk that is being replaced is broken up into chunks first.

Have you had to have a tree cut down in your yard, or has one blown down? Rent or borrow a chain saw and cut the trunk into two inch slabs.

Most people think of flagstone when they think of a garden path. Flagstone is expensive. Cut costs by using them as stepping stones instead of making a solid path.

Stones that are placed on top of the ground should be thick and heavy for stability. Better, neater, safer and not requiring as much thickness is a walk that is set into the ground so that the top is flush with ground level.

Dig out enough earth to allow for the thickness of the material plus two inches for a bed of sand. The sand will take care of irregularities in thicknesses. Make a wood form for the sides of the walk before you pour the sand.

Bricks can be butted together for a smooth walk. Stone and concrete rubble will need breaking and fitting. Wood slabs — blocks cut from railroad ties — can be used the way you use stone or brick.

Whatever wood you use, be sure to treat it with a preservative. Railroad ties are already treated.

You can set treated wood right into the soil for a quick and easy path. The same with stone if you want to dig individual holes and fit each piece carefully.

Material set in a sand base can be made firmer by sweeping in a mixture of one part cement, two parts sand (or ready-mix concrete) and then, with the cracks filled, wet with a fine spray from the garden hose.

If true permanence is your goal, you can make a bed consisting of a standard concrete walk and place the stone in this while it is soft. Sweep in dry mix to fill the cracks, and wet down. Use a standard mix for the base, and a couple of inches of con- about four inches of gravel and a couple of inches of concrete over it.

Book fans feud over North Pole

the trip in his book, "To the Top of the Continent."

In 1958, Bradford Washburn, director of the Boston Museum of Science and a recognized authority on Mt. McKinley, wrote that "Cook's qualifications were less than marginal for an exploit of this magnitude." But the author states unequivocally: "Did or did not Dr. Frederick A. Cook attain the summit of Mt. McKinley? He did." This in spite of the affadivit of October 4, 1909, that Edward Barrill made, stating that they never got closer than 18 miles from the top of the mountain.

In the second part of the book, the author gives Dr. Cook's version of the discovery of the North Pole, claiming that a vast assemblage of prominent Americans supported Peary's claim simply for reasons of protocol.

Peary was a Naval hero whose expedition was backed by the National Geographic Society, members of the Senate and Congress, and heads of America's largest banks and corporations. Yet they were wrong in downgrading Cook, says the author, and he backs his claims with all the evidence he could find. It is considerable.

In the latter part of the book, the author outlines Cook's difficulties with the law as a result of drilling for oil in Texas during the Teapot Dome era. Considering himself something of a geologist, Cook undertook to develop a large company to search for oil.

In time, his company was accused of offering more than they could deliver. In other words, he was selling fraudulent stock. He was tried, convicted, and sentenced to 14 years and 9 months in prison, and fined $12,000.

The author states, "It is contended here that Cook was not guilty. It is contended that he was an honest man who had exposed himself to the hazards of an extremely speculative industry during the period of great optimism."

The discovery of the North Pole does not seem all that important to us now. We confront men who have walked on the surface of the moon! Yet this book uncovers a once front page controversy — the dispute between Frederick Cook and Robert Peary over who first got to that desolate, lifeless spot.

Historical treasures all YOURS!

The Natural History Museum is also custodian of the world-famous La Brea tar pits, the richest known source of Ice Age (Pleistocene) fossils. For thousands of years its sticky pools, formed by seeping asphalt, trapped and preserved animal and plant life. The Ice Age lasted some three million years and ended about 10,000 years ago. Preserved in the tar pits is a treasure of bones of extinct animals, including camels, saber-tooth tigers, mammoths, horses, antelopes, giant ground sloths, bison and prehistoric birds.

In 1914 the tar pits yielded the skull and partial skeleton of an Indian woman about five feet tall and some 25 years old. By scientific dating techniques, it was determined that the skeleton is 9,000 years old, making it among the earliest human remains ever found in the Western Hemisphere.

of Natural History

The tar pits are regularly visited by paleontologists, anthropologists and archeologists from all over the world. Located in Hancock Park on Wilshire Boulevard, the pits and the current diggings are open to the public daily without charge.

None of this information about the Natural History Museum is new to the thousands of Pomona Valley students who visit the county institution each year on the museum's School Tour Program.

The museum's education division schedules a class in the gallery of its choice and mails instructional material before the visit. More than 3,000 classes composed of over 100,000 students tour the museum each year. In a recent year the number of local classes visiting the museum were Pomona, 116; Claremont, 16; Walnut, 44; Ontario-Montclair, 10; Chino, 3, and Upland, 6.

The museum also conducts a summer natural science workshop for talented high school students with an aptitude for science, and circulates films of a wide variety—"Born Free," "Dr. Leakey and the Dawn of Man," "Prediction of Earthquakes," "Lincoln's Last Day" and "Naughty Marietta." These movies are shown free at the Pomona public library and Cal Poly, and at 30 other locations.

Many local schools, as well as Cal Poly and the Claremont Graduate School, make use of the museum's lending service which offers on short-term loan such items as a skull of a saber-tooth tiger, ancient firearms, animal skeletons, Indian weapons, and colored slides of scientific and historical interest.

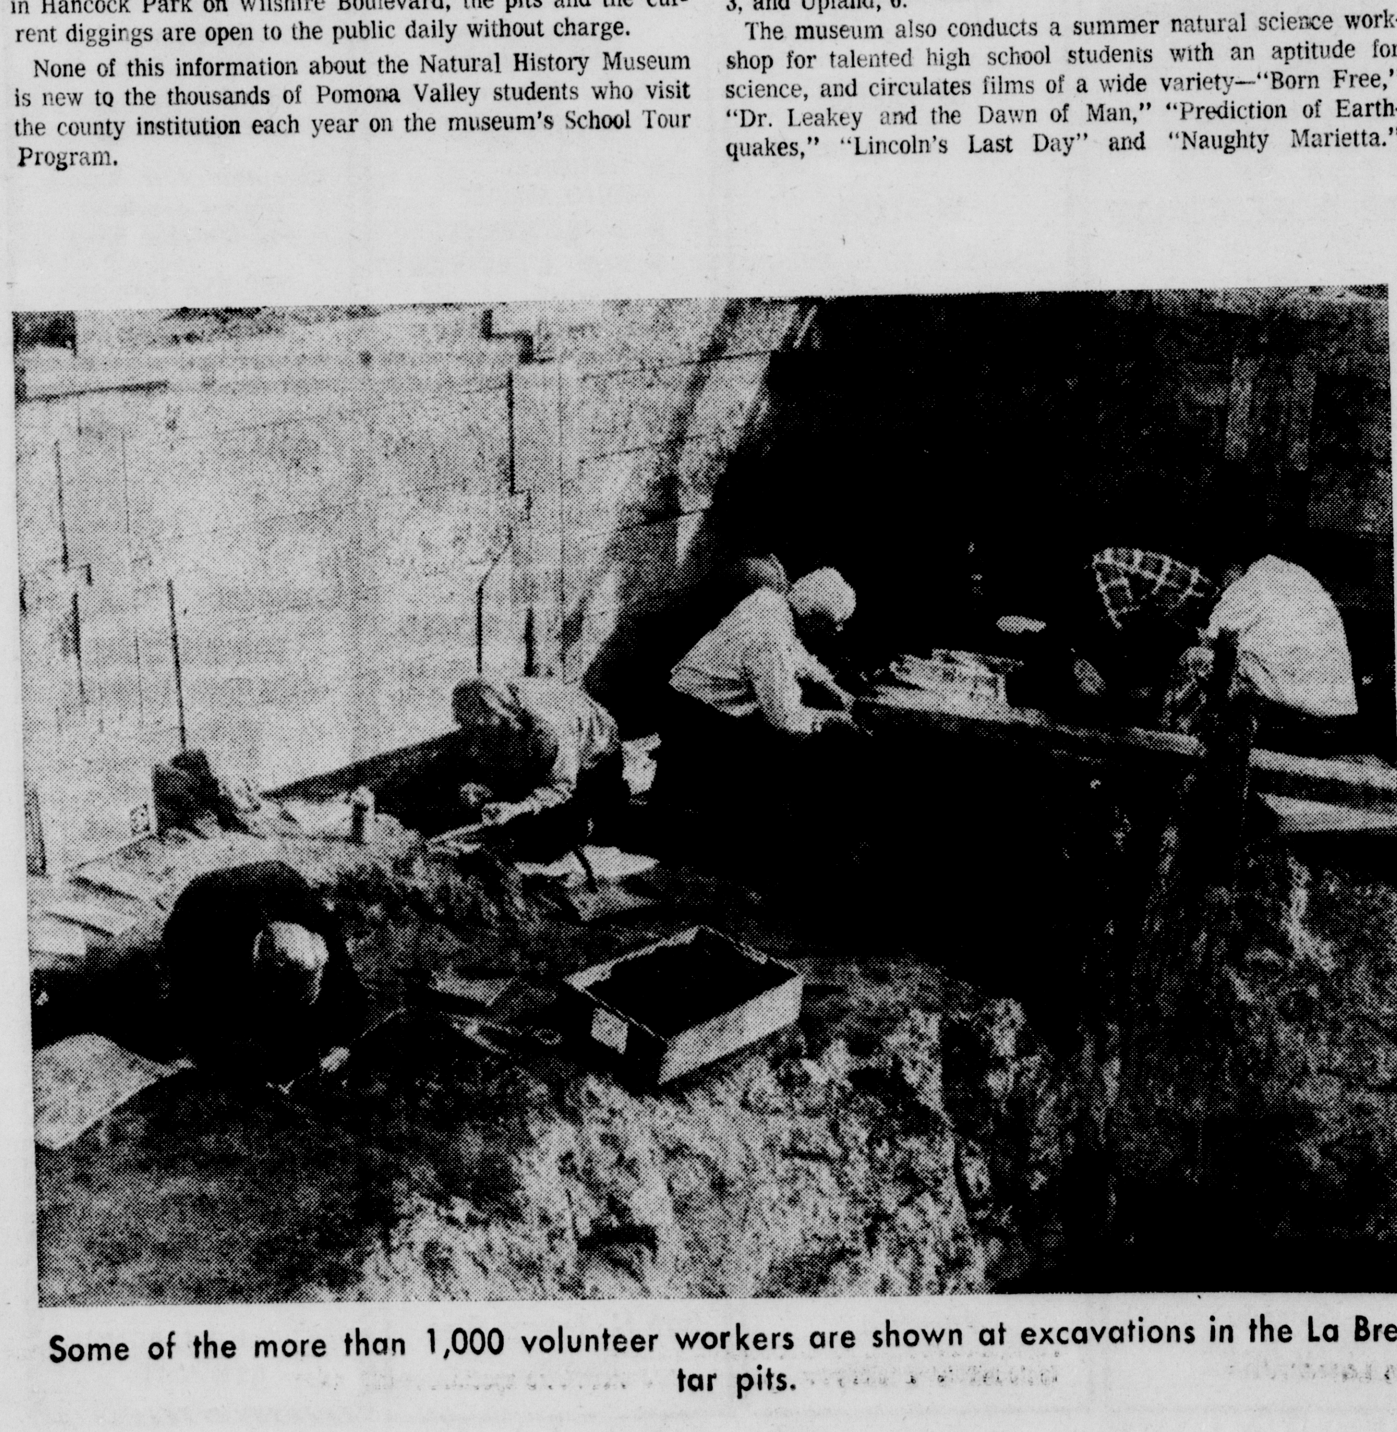
Because the ever-expanding collections, the growing number of displays, and the increasing demand from school classes have stretched the museum facilities to their limits, the 62-year-old institution last month announced a $7.2 million expansion program made possible partly by public subscription and partly by $3.8 million in federal revenue-sharing funds alloted by the county Board of Supervisors.

The three-story addition, expected to be completed by next December, will include a Hall of Gems, a Hall of Minerals, several galleries of history and archeology, a life sciences research center, laboratory space, a conference room and offices.

Among a variety of purely cultural activities at the museum are the chamber music concerts offered in Jean Delacour Auditorium at 2:30 each Sunday afternoon.

The Natural History Museum of Los Angeles County is YOUR museum, offering a wide variety of constantly changing programs and exhibits, carrying on valuable scientific research and exploration, and offering the citizens what museum officials call "recreational education."

The museum is open from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily, except Mondays, Christmas and Thanksgiving Day. And because it is YOUR museum, admission is free.



Some of the more than 1,000 volunteer workers are shown at excavations in the La Brea tar pits.

POMONA — Fine quality diamond rings and watches are the specialty of the house at Adams Jewelers, 279 Pomona Mall East.

"We feature Timex watches and ArtCarved Diamonds," said owner Dick Adams. "We have the Pomona Valley's largest selection of Timex watches."

Included are the Timex Quartz models, which is guaranteed by the maker to run within 15 seconds accurately each month.

"It's one of the finest watches available," said Adams.

The store has a long history of serving the residents of Pomona. It was opened in its present location in 1940 by the present owner's late father, Carl Adams, and has remained a family operation continuously.

"We're almost ready to open our new Chino store," said Adams. The new store, to be located in the El Central Real Plaza, will carry the same merchandise stocked by the Pomona Mall store. It is expected to be opened within the next week.

ArtCarved diamonds, including wedding rings, carry one of the industry's outstanding guarantees, said Adams. Included is a one-year guarantee against loss or theft and a permanent value plan under which an ArtCarved diamond can be exchanged at full value toward purchase of another ArtCarved diamond.

Other lines carried by the store include Bulova, Accutron and Wyler watches, leaded crystal items from Sweden, and a large selection of clocks, including some antiques.

The store also specializes in watch and jewelry repair.

"We pride ourselves on doing the finest clock repairs in the valley," Adams explained.

Both the Pomona Mall store, and the new Chino store, will be open through Christmas everyday. Hours will be 9:30 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Friday, 9:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. on Saturdays and 12 to 5 p.m. on Sundays.

Lavishly illustrated history of state welcome Yule gift

By BRADLEY A. SIMON

CALIFORNIA: An Illustrated History, or the Four Hundred Years Epic of the Golden State From the Coming of the Spaniards to Our Challenging Present; by T. H. Watkins. American West Publishing Co. $19.95 till Dec. 31; then $25.

Many books cross a librarian's desk, but seldom does a book appear of this type that can so readily capture enthusiasm. It has its faults, to be sure, but these are quite minor and are far outweighted by its virtues.

In the publishing world, this would be called a "coffee table book", and by size, type, and format it is that, but it is also considerably more.

The illustrations are numerous and marvelous, and accompany a sprightly text. The author has done a superb job of telling the 400-year history of California. This is a most comprehensive and logically organized volume which should have a place in every reading home.

Using more than 190,000 words and superb vintage and contemporary photographs, T. H. Watkins reflects his years of research and study. He presents the California story in prose that informs but, most of all, entertains the reader.

For example, in describing the first governor of the Depression years, James Rolph, he states, "'Sunny Jim' possessed enormous personal charm, a jolly good nature, and the political, administrative, and social instincts of a doorknob." Or, "For California was not so much settled by the Spanish as loosely tacked down along her western edges."

Watkins' style is engaging and a joy to read. Make no mistake, the book is scholarly researched, but is written in a non-scholarly manner. The subjects covered are so comprehensive as to defy description. It is well organized; so well that it flows together.

He presents this history of California in such a way, through the ultimate use of photographs and words, as to make the history of California come alive. This he accomplishes by crossing the barriers of time to illuminate both past and present.

The author is well qualified as a subject authority and by experience. He is associate editor of "The American West" and author of "The Grand Colorado: The Story of a River and Its Canyons" and "Gold and Silver in the West: The Illustrated History of an American dream."

This volume, although relatively expensive, is worth every penny. If your interests are history, nostalgia, or current affairs, you will find all you may want and then some in this excellent history of California.

Struggle for survival described by author

By NICHOLAS POLOS

HUNTERS OF THE NORTHERN FOREST: Designs for Survival Among the Alaskan Kutchin. Chicago University Press, $10.50.

This book is an epic account of the struggle for survival, and it should be read in the warm comfort of your living room.

This is a detailed, illustrated account of man and nature in the boreal forest, or taiga, better known as the Great North Woods of Canada and Alaska.

Anthropologist Nelson describes the full range of hunting, trapping, fishing, travel and survival techniques utilized by the Athapaskan-speaking Kutchin, contemporary American Indians who inhabit a remote wilderness in east-central Alaska.

Nelson's study is of great value as a body of information for anthropologists, and for all people who are interested in American Indians, hunting and gathering peoples, human ecology, and even in natural history.

Over and above this, it has unique value as a "how-to-do-it" book for fishermen, campers, hikers, trappers, and anyone interested in survival or homesteading any place in the wooded regions of northern United States or Canada.

The book recaptures a final remnant of pioneer living in North America at the last moment of its existence, If you are looking for a frontier this is it! This study affords a rare opportunity to explore and to make practical use of an Indian people's knowledge of the land on which they live. It is a detailed description of the techniques, equipment and Eskimo Arctic lore.

The author lived among the Kutchin for a year and conducted intensive research via active participation into the survival techniques of these people.

This is a serious work in which the author disagrees with the belief "commonly held by anthropologists, that hunter-gatherers tend to adapt perfectly to their environment," and he concludes after comparing the Indians with the Eskimos that the Eskimos deserve some warm applause because they have been more successful than the Indians in adapting to their surroundings.

According to Nelson, boreal forest Indians, such as the Kutchin, are among the very few native North Americans who still actively pursue a hunting way of life.

His rare and vivid description of the life of an isolated people (one of the few available on the ethnographic descriptions on northern Athapaskan groups) serves to remind the reader that manmade protection against nature and the elements is bought at a high price, and that an understanding of the culture of the hunger-gatherer "might be of key importance in understanding the human animal as he exists today."

The book contains a fair bibliography, and a solid index. Unfortunately, the language or writing style of the author is rather stiff, and has a socio-scientific overtone which makes for tough sledding even while there is plenty of snow on the horizon.

Since my idea of camping revolves around the concept of when the ice-cube maker at the neighborhood motel breaks down, it is difficult for me to enjoy this book.

However, more intrepid souls, in our "social-security" world who enjoy communing with nature would most certainly find this book worthy of an investment in time and money.

Can girl find happiness in the hills?

By JUNE DUGAN
P-B Staff Writer

"THE MOUNTAIN FARM," by Ernest Raymond, Saturday Review Press, $7.95.

Can a girl raised on a mountain farm, who has had a little education and some contact with the world of London, find happiness when forced to stay in that mountain region?

This is the question posed by this pleasant little story about good people, leading the good life in a peaceful setting.

Greta Winlake is the widowed farmer's daughter. She was a brilliant student, but had to leave school when her mother died to help her father with his farm. She has a do-less brother, Matthew, who is given to hypochondria and religion, and Greta is her father's good right hand.

This peaceful setting hasn't much in the way of cultural diversion to a lonely 19-year-old girl, but it does have craggy peaks which challenge mountain climbers from all over the world. One year, Harry Whinlake finds the going so rough he is forced to provide lodgings for these climbers. The first to arrive is Norry Kingharber, a world renowned mountain climber and son of a wealthy family.

Greta and Norry immediately fall in love, but Greta sees only difficulty ahead in trying to have the Kingharber family accept her.

Greta also is loved secretly by Johnny Blenco, a local man who is a hunchback, but who is possessed of a handsome face, a brilliant mind and a wonderful healing power.

To tell who wins the heroine might spoil the tale for the reader but suffice it to say that the mountain plays a part.

While this is certainly not an engrossing story in itself, it is filled with extremely interesting characters, many of whom speak in the fascinating dialect of the mountain people. And the description of the scenery is another point in the book's favor.

Woman recounts underground days

By JERRY L. VOORHIS

THE LAST ESCAPE by Ruth Klueger and Peggy Mann, Doubleday, $10.

For anyone interested in the present Middle East crisis, Ms. Klueger's book makes good reading. It's an exciting, apparently true to life autobiography of a woman who was actively involved in smuggling Jews out of Europe and into Palestine during the years immediately preceding the outbreak of World War II.

Most of the action takes place in Rumania between the fall of 1939 and the summer of 1941.

Consequently, one not only gets a first-hand glance at the Zionist movement and the plight of the European Jews, but also at politics and society in the Balkans as well. Characters such as King Carol II and Magda Lupescu come to life as real human beings instead of shadowy, semi-legendary figures.

Klueger is especially poignant when she describes the refusal of practically every nation on earth, including the United States, to admit millions of European Jews as Immigrants even though it was becoming increasingly obvious that they were going to be exterminated by Hitler and his allies.

The fact that Europe's Jews did not find a haven anywhere is one reason why Israel exists today and why the Israelis are not going to allow their state to disappear.

In addition to her particular insights into Balkan and Zionist politics, Ms. Klueger also gives a grim but graphic picture of the restrictive British Policy toward Jewish immigration into Palestine.

Although her portrayal of the British attitude is somewhat prejudiced, it still helps the reader understand why Jews in Palestine and many Zionists throughout the world were so strongly anti-British during the years immediately following World War II.

Although the book is primarily concerned with politics and intrigue, a love affair between the author and a boyfriend from her childhood adds a certain amount of spice and also provides a unifying theme to a narrative that often shifts abruptly from place to place and from one set of characters to another.

I would recommend Ms. Klueger's work for anyone who wants an exciting yet poignant and deeply personal account of a dramatic and tragic period in human history.

Book fans feud over claims for North Pole

By WILLISTON WIRT

WINNER LOSE ALL — Dr. Cook and the Theft of the North Pole by Hugh Eames, Little Brown and Co. $8.95.

This recent "debunking" book maintains that Frederick Cook, not Robert Peary, was the first man to reach the North Pole.

It purports to supply all the evidence. Yet it does not prove its thesis beyond any doubt, since too many proofs are unavailable and the reader is asked to accept the author's convictions as his own. For the author is convinced, all right, having spent 2½ years in careful research to prove his reasoning.

Cook's first claim to fame involved being the first man to climb to the top of Mt. McKinley in Alaska. The author covers this episode in the first part of the book, entitled "Cook versus Nature".

At the time, Mt. McKinley offered a spectacular challenge. Accompanied by a single companion, Edward Barrill, Cook reported that they had conquered the mountain. He gave full details of

Album Beat

Beatles back on Apple Records; Lennon does 'Mind Games'

By EMMETT JONES

RINGO. Ringo Starr. Apple Records. The Beatles are back together on Apple Records, and Ringo Starr is the peacemaker and the one who put it all together in an album styled after "Sargeant Pepper." However it falls short of meeting the power and force of the classic "Pepper." The cover is also Sgt. Pepper style; a collage of an old theater with Ringo up front and the audience, including all the Beatles and others, looking down on the stage.

"Ringo" features the current hit single, "Photograph," Ringo's best effort on the album. Other songs include "I'm the Greatest," written by John Lennon; "Sunshine Life for Me" by George Harrison; and "Six O'Clock" by Paul and Linda McCartney. All the Beatles had a part in making the album.

When asked if there was any over-all concept in mind when he decided to go ahead and make a complete album, Ringo Starr replied, "No, it's an accident album." That I can believe and because of it being "an accident" the album lacks some continuity and style, although it has its high points and portrays a bit of each of the Beatles.

"You're Sixteen" is excellent and brings back memories of necking at the drive-in movies, done in a satirical style. It also brings back the old rock and roll of the late fifties and early sixties. Lyrics like "You walked out of my dreams, and into my arms, Now you're my angel divine, You're sixteen, you're beautiful and you're mine," will give you an idea of what I mean. Definitely rock and roll blues-ies.

Its a good cut. As a Beatles fan, I won't say NO to the album, but I do have mixed emotions about it. Try it out and see what you think.

* * *

MIND GAMES. John Lennon. Apple Records. SW 3414.

Featuring "Mind Games," a current hit single, this album starts off in fine fashion but it has too much message for me. No fun — just a constant hammering on what's wrong with society today.

Sometimes I feel, in listening to each of the ex-Beatles album releases, that they are all trying to accentuate their individual musical styles too much. All have produced excellent albums but all have also produced mediocre music within those albums, lacking the flair of what everyone expects from John Lennon, Paul McCartney and George Harrison. Ringo didn't write that much with the Beatles, so he's a relative newcomer in recent years. They all tend to stay in one channel musically, instead of exploring new avenues of format and expression.

I guess what I miss most in the ex-Beatles,' individual music is the ability to change from serious social message to a carefree musical presentation such as "Yellow Submarine." This is what made them great as a group — the spontaneity and change their music carried — and that quality is missing in their albums as individuals.

"Mind Games," the first cut on side one is great. It's musically well done and it has a message to tell. Take note and listen: "Love is the answer and you know that for sure." And the very end of Mind Games sets the tone of the entire album. You have to listen very closely to hear Lennon's familiar words: "I want you to make love, not war, I know you've heard it before."

As with other Lennon albums, most of the cuts have a message about today's society, sometimes subtle, sometimes startling in its obviousness.

Chat reveals new 'friend' really sister

By United Press International

BIRKENHEAD, England (UPI) — Peggy Buckley, 54, invited the new girl Violet Roach, 47, to the bingo club for a cup of tea. They chatted about the old days and where they had lived and suddenly something clicked for Mrs. Roach.

"You are my sister," she told Mrs. Buckley. They had not seen each other for more than 40 years.

"We had a good cry," Mrs. Buckley said Wednesday. "For after all these years you realize you have someone dear to you.

Mrs. Buckley said they had been separated since their father came home from World War I with gas poisoning, could not work and had her younger sister adopted by friends.

12 mods a day

Ganesha students put new scheduling system to test

By MELINDA ROBERTS
Ganesha Reporter

If you go to Ganesha and it seems like there are a lot of very confused looking students walking around, you won't be being misled at all.

On a trial basis, the students are using the Modual System of scheduling. Every student is given 12 "mods" a day and each morning must schedule them into his classes for the day.

If a teacher is absent, his classes are closed and the student must schedule himself into either the library, the Giant Lair or one of his other classes.

A student must have at least eight mods a day, which involve student-teacher contact. Every student is given 2 mods for lunch.

As was said before, this is strictly on a trial basis. If the students prove that they can handle the responsibility and freedom that goes with having this kind of scheduling, it may become a regular part of Ganesha life.

Ganesha students have worked with the Modual system for one week now with seemingly few difficulties. There are many advantages to this program. If a student needs special help from a teacher he can schedule into that teachers free modual and receive help.

Or, if he has special assignments the student can schedule himself into the library and get extra study time.

Students must remain on campus at all times during the school day except for lunch. Students are not allowed to go home any time even if they have an open mod.

This program will end after the Christmas vacation.

Chino girls in football battle

By ELLEN GONZALEZ
Chino Reporter

Civil war broke out in Chino on Wednesday, Nov. 21. Battle lines were drawn on the Chino Memorial Field for the yearly skirmish between the CHS senior and junior girls. Once again it was Powder Puff football time in Chino.

Each year the Chino High chapter of the American Field Service sponsors the Powder Puff football game to finance the foreign exchange student program. During the halftime ceremonies of the game Fabiola Salcedo, Chino's foreign exchange student from Columbia, and Jack Schilsler, who spent the summer in Brazil, spoke to the crowd.

Senior and junior girls practiced for nearly two weeks for the flag football game. Coaching the senior girls were seniors Jeff McCool, Bob Baumgartner, Randy Shaw, Oscar Hernandez, and Don Stone. Coaching the junior girls were Chris Lewis, Art Fernandez, Richard Salgado, and Hector La Marque.

But girl vs. girl wasn't the only item that made the Powder Puff game so entertaining. Junior and senior boys served as cheerleaders for their respective teams. Junior cheerleaders were Emilio Hernandez, Jon Hadlich, Greg Burns, Roy Wright, Tony Figueroa, and Joe Schaff.

Senior cheerleaders were Jim Santos, Jack Schisler, Northern Tyler, Tony Torres, and Gary Byington.

Halftime ceremonies for the Powder Puff game were a little different from the usual.

The girls decided to pick a Powder Puff king. Contestants were Jerry Belmudes, Danny Lovio, Jeff McCool, Mike Nieman, Martin Pimentel, Darrell Rayburn, Scott Richartz, Randy Rizo, Mark Roberts, and Northern Tyler. Two were chosen. Master of ceremonies Pete Setlich announced their names. They were Rayburn and Richartz.

Immediately following the game there was a dance in the Chino High School multipurpose room.

Rapid reading

Class open at Damien

By PAT BASE
Damien High Reporter

Damien High School is sponsoring an eight-week course in reading improvement skills. The organization instructing students enrolled in the course is the Rapid Reading Association which employs a reading course called the Optimation Reading Improvement Program.

The Optimation reading techniques have been applied in elementary (fifth and sixth grades), junior and senior high schools, as well as colleges throughout the country.

The Optimation course utilizes the present reading capacity of the individual to stimulate the cognitive centers of the mind to work at a swifter pace. Upon completion of the course, the Reading Association guarantees to each individual that he will be able to read either 3000 words per minute or 5 times his starting rate — whatever is higher.

Classes for the Optimation Reading Improvement Program have already begun and are open to the public. At this time, the classes are held every Wednesday from 7 to 9:30 p.m. in Damien's new gymnasium.

1,000 foreign students on way to U.S. schools

Youth for Understanding, headquartered in Ann Arbor, Mich., will bring more than 1,000 high school students into this country from Argentina, Brazil, Colombia, Paraguay and Uruguay in January.

These students will participate in the Youth For Understanding International Student Exchange Program. They will remain in the United States for six months.

They will live with host families and attend high schools with children of host families.

In 23 years, Youth for Understanding, a U.S. State Department cooperating organization, has placed some 42,000 young people from 50 countries in U.S. high schools.

Holiday concert planned

The Walnut High School performing arts department will present its Christmas concert, "A Musical Sleigh Ride," Dec. 14, at 8 p.m.

It will feature the concert and stage bands, directed by Richard Massaro, and the concert choir, Les Chanteuse and the Chamber singers, directed by Larry Cline.

Soloists will be Jeff Kennedy, Mary Hybner and Steve Hage. They will be accompanied by Mrs. Carol Taylor.

Backdrops and lighting will be provided by students directed by Jack Betts.

Songs on the program are "Let It Snow," "Oh Happy Day," "Christmas Is" and "Still, Still, Still."

Tickets are $1 and may be purchased at the door.

School dance at Palomares

By KEN SWART
Pomona Reporter

Pomona High School's annual Christmas dance will be held at the Palomares Community Center, Dec. 19, from 9 p.m. to midnight.

The theme of the dance is "An Old Fashioned Christmas." The tentatively planned band is "Silver Hill," the same band which played at the PHS homecoming.

Tickets, on sale now at the PHS student store, cost $3.50 a couple — without ASB cards, $3.25 a couple — with one ASB card, and $3 a couple — with two ASB cards.

Each student voted for 15 Christmas queen semi-finalists, five from each class, last Wednesday. The top five finalists from each class will be submitted for a vote Dec. 12. One girl from each class will be named queen while the remaining four will be princesses. Thus the Christmas Court will contain three queens and twelve princesses.

It Happened in Pomona

By Doc Peirsol

Head shrinking in 1904

Although there were no psychiatrists in this Valley in the year 1904 to whom Pomonans could recite their trials and tribulations, our troubled citizens did have some willing and, at times, long-suffering substitutes on whose shoulders, for lack of couches, they could cry when the need arose. Those substitutes, quite naturally, were our ever-helpful and always-available local clergymen.

For the most part the psychiatric ministrations tendered by Pomona's ministers achieved splendid results. However, there were times, of course, when such counseling sessions resulted in some rather unexpected deviations from the normal kindly-question and tearful-answer pattern. One such instance was interestingly reported in an October, 1904, issue of The Pomona Daily Review.

"A Pomona clergyman tells us," the article read, "that the other evening he had a call from a woman who came to his office to complain of her husband's conduct. She told the pastor that the man was a low-down, lazy, mean cuss with whom she could no longer live. After listening to a long recital of the delinquencies of the lady's spouse and of her efforts to correct them, the minister asked:"

"'Have you ever tried heaping coals of fire upon his head'?"

"'No'," was the reply, "but I've tried hot water'."

Personal finance

'GO-Go Years' ended in $1 billion loss, gain

By CARLTON SMITH

How does a man feel when he loses half a billion dollars in one day?

Wait a minute. Half a BILLION dollars? One man, in one day?

You heard it right. On April 22, 1970, as the market slid into one of the worst years of its history, Ross Perot, Texas billionaire, lost that much in a single day.

It was more than J. P. Morgan had been worth at the time of his death in 1913. It probably set an all-time record: more than any man had ever lost in a single day since the Industrial Revolution ushered in the era of great personal wealth.

Perot wasn't greatly upset. After all, he had accumulated, by age 40, around $1.5 billion — "about 40 per cent of the whole U.S. federal budget for the year he was born, 1930." Still had about a billion left, then. And anyway, it was all on paper — a paper loss and paper profits to make up the billion he still had. Not quite real.

John Brooks, author of "The Go-Go Years," sees the event as "symbolic, in magnitude and unreality, of the 1970 panic." The reporters are still digging around in the rubble and piecing together what happened in '70. We didn't know how bad it was.

Or how hilarious some of the people and the happenings were or what an Alice-in-Wonderland quality there was about much of the scene.

The "go-go years" were in 1960s. Investors were intoxicated by the spectacle of weird and wonderful machines manufacturing, as if by magic, what seemed to be an endless supply of money. There were the conglomerates, the takeovers with "funny money," the performance funds, the hedge funds . . .

Mysterious things, the hedge funds. Everybody talked about them, nobody knew much about them. Brooks introduces you to Alfred Winslow Jones, the improbably inventor of the hedge fund, and tells you why "exclusivity and secrecy were crucial" to an operation that turned a 325 per cent profit in five years.

The conglomerates blossomed briefly during the go-go years, after some bright young men discovered the techniques by which a small, relatively unheard-of company could take over and swallow a giant of American industry, 20 times its size. How?

It involved some Alice-in-Wonderland accounting. "the simple mathematical fact is that . . . a kind of magic comes into play. There is an apparent growth in earnings that is entirely an optical illusion.'' The accountant, through the choices at his disposal, "was often able to write for the surviving company practically any current earnings figure he chose."

Thus investors were buying optical illusions. And thus a young student of the technique, starting with a borrowed $25,000, could become a multimillionaire by his 29th birthday, presiding over a gaggle of companies he had conglomerated into a $400 million bundle.

This isn't just another of those books about the market put together by a writer looking for a subject. Brooks is a first-rate writer (portions of the book appeared in the New Yorker magazine). But more, he's been close to all this as it happened — present at some of the highlight events of the decade, talking to many of the major characters as they rose and fell. It's a book that will entertain you, enlighten you, and possibly frighten you a bit.

Recommended reading for anyone who has money invested in securities, or thinks he might like to try it. The book is published by Weybright and Talley and costs $10.

The question finally, of course, is whether the brokers and the investors emerged from the blood bath of 1970 with any more humility or wisdom than they'd had before. Were the needed reforms provoked? Will things be different now?

For the author's conclusions, you'll have to read the book. But his closing thought is that "this may be, conceivably, one of the last books to be written about 'Wall Street' in its own time."

Two male parakeets reject lone female

By DR. FRANK MILLER

DEAR DR. MILLER, I bought two parakeets for a friend a year ago. Both eventually turned out to have blue across the bridge of their beaks which I am told indicates they are male. So my friend bought another parakeet whose bridge was just turning brown. Poor Henny hasn't made out too well so far. The male birds, one a rainbow and one a dark blue, won't have anything to do with her or her nesting box. The two males chatter across the room when separated. When out of their cage exercising they are always together kissing or following each other. Will either of the male parakeets ever outgrow the other and settle down with the yellow and green female — I.S.

Dear I.S.: Henny hasn't much chance of breaking up the boys after this length of time but anything's possible, obviously. Being the odd one out in this triangle might have made her so mad by now she would beat up on one of the boys if he did make a pass at her. Still, there is a possibility if their affair was broken up — perhaps by giving away one of the males — the survivor and Henny might make out eventually, particularly in the springtime.

On the other hand, if your main concern at this point is Henny's happiness, perhaps you could trade both of the boys to a good home in exchange for a new male more susceptible to her charms. (I am assuming, of course, she does have some and that "she" actually is a female.)

DEAR DR. MILLER: I could give my grandson a goldfish or something like that, of course, but I'd like to give him something more than that. How do you know when a child is old enough — U.B.

Dear U.B.: Certainly the very young child can't be expected to assume responsibility for a pet. The older child usually needs at the very least direction and encouragement. The pet purchase must take into consideration the parents and their attitudes. They must be willing to accept it and agree that it can fit into their home environment. If they show little or no interest, the chances are poor that either the animal or the child will benefit from the experience as it should. Not even a goldfish should be subject to neglect. To allow this is very poor training for the child. Of course, it is even harder on the goldfish.

SOMETHING TO CELEBRATE — British model Twiggy and her manager-boyfriend, Justin de Villeneuve, drink a toast to her return to the cameras. Twiggy will star in her second movie, "Gotta Sing, Gotta Dance."

Pomona to screen film on ecology

CLAREMONT — "Farallon Light,'' an award-winning ecology film, will be shown during a Pomona College assembly at 11 a.m. Tuesday in Seaver Auditorium.

The film showing, co-sponsored by the Students for Environmental Action and the Pomona College Public Events Committee, is open to the public without charge.

The 25-minute color film is a documentary on the Farallon Islands, off the coast of San Francisco, which is the largest breeding colony of seabirds in the continental United States. The film won many awards in 1971, including the Gold Medal Special Jury Award at the Atlanta International Film Festival; Bronze Award, International Film and Television Festival of New York, and an honorable mention award at the San Francisco International Film Festival.

The history of man's interest in the islands is bloody. In the 1800's, the fur seal colonies were totally extinguished, and later egg-takers ruthlessly plundered.

Although the Farallon National Widlife Refuge has long since been protected by law, remote nesting areas probably have been preserved over the years only because Coast Guard lighthouse keepers have discouraged boaters from landing and exploring.

The islands are at another turning point now that automation of Farallon Light will free the islands of light-keepers for the first time in more than a century.

Johnny Carson supreme on late-night talk show

By RICK DU BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — CBS-TV quit the late-night talk show competition a while back, ABC-TV is in the process of giving it up, and NBC-TV's Johnny Carson and Tom Snyder will just about have this network programming field to themselves in 1974.

In terms of longevity, Carson's late-night reign with the "Tonight" show has been phenomenal. He and his ratings remain as solid as the Rock of Gibraltar, and his series, which costs little to produce aside from the salaries, is a tremendous source of advertising income for NBC-TV. Snyder, meanwhile, is the host of the network's new "Tomorrow" series, which immediately follows the Monday-through-Thursday Carson outings.

Both CBS-TV and ABC-TV now have tried a variety of ways—including talk shows of their own—to chop down Carson's dominant ratings, but no one questions that he is king of the late-night television field. CBS-TV put Merv Griffin on against him, but to little avail, and now is offering late movies instead. Sometimes the movies do well in the ratings, but there aren't enough good ones to main a consistent pressure against Carson. So solid is the "Tonight" show that even when there are guest hosts—and there are plenty—it remains strong in the statistics.

ABC-TV has revamped and revamped its late-night programming in its bid to unseat Carson. Some of its recent scheduling in this area has been sharp, unique and even exciting, and ABC-TV's late-hour ratings have definitely improved, but they still, on the average, trail well behind the "Tonight" show star.

Some years ago, ABC-TV tried Les Crane as head-on talk show competition for Carson. No dice. ABC-TV also tried Joey Bishop. No dice. Then it came up with Dick Cavett, one of the brightest and most intelligent talents in television. He had a nightly talk program —like Carson—and while it gained critical plaudits, its ratings were not satisfactory to his network bosses. They came up with the current late-night potpurri series called "Wide World of Entertainment," which, among other programs, included Cavett for a week a month. In addition, veteran talk show host Jack Paar also joined the series for a week a month.

In short, Carson was still facing talk show competition two weeks each month on ABC-TV. But Paar retired from "Wide World of Entertainment" last month. And Cavett, in 1974, will do only 26 programs, or, roughly, one every two weeks. Instead of talk shows comprising half of the "Wide World of Entertainment" lineup, the series will devote two of every four weeks to mystery-suspense tales.

ABC-TV, in other words, no longer—at least for the immediate future—will be using talk shows as the prime staple of its late-night programming. It is just about conceding the conversation field to Carson in the head-to-head network ratings race.

RICHARD ROUNDTREE stars as detective John Shaft in MGM-TV's series, "Shaft," on CBS on a rotating schedule Tuesday nights.

CLIFF KING Says:

In an experiment conducted in Germany, a number of constant TV viewers were paid to quit watching TV entirely for a solid year. At first, it seemed to work out rather well. People got to know their children again. They visited friends and relatives, took little trips, played games and enjoyed the simple pre-TV pleasures.

Then, participants started to drop out of the experiment. They reported that tensions and quarrelling increased to such an extent that, after only five months, every participant had given up the paid experimenting and returned to TV watching.
